PREFACE.

CLASSMATES:

When your Secretary was requested to prepare and publish a Class Memorial, no time was set for its completion. Nor could this well be done, as any one can see who has an idea of the painstaking and patience necessary to such a work.

The aim has been to be complete within the limits of our plan. To accomplish this, circulars and letters numbering several hundreds, have been sent to find the facts desired. Replies, often long delayed, have, as often, when made, been incomplete, demanding still further correspondence. Matter thus collected has been examined, collated, arranged, and written out. Revision and re-revision have been employed in order to secure accuracy. None but the experienced in labors of this kind can duly estimate the patience, time, and expense requisite to secure tolerable satisfaction. It has been our object to furnish a volume to please the Class — to be worthy of its character. To its preparation have been freely devoted hours snatched from those given by most men, to repose, recreation, society, or pursuits of wealth and fame; and this, for more months than would seem credible to most persons.

But the labors of the Secretary have been made pleasant by many expressions of interest and good-will from his classmates, and the ready response which many have made to his solicitations for information, and for funds to pay expenses. In the latter particular, some have been very generous, not to say magnanimous. Up to the date of this printing, all expenses for these twenty-five years have been paid, with a surplus going to pay, in part, for this memorial volume.

But the delay has been longer than we anticipated. Beside the causes already alluded to, incidental to the nature of the work and the scattered condition, in all these years, of so large a Class, the toils of a busy life with a dependent family, and the trials of sickness, sorrow and change, have had their full share.

The time has not been lost. We come with the record of a quarter century. In the five years since our last meeting, interesting facts have occurred in many of our lives, now placed on record, that had not been so, if we had hurried our work through. We have extended inquiry, and made our story more nearly complete. As this is, probably, our last class publication, it is well that it be not only as full and accurate as possible, but carried so far along in our history as our advancing years make it prudent.

The Secretary's class collections have been carefully filed and registered, extending through his official services. Classmates may be interested to know what they are. They embrace:—1. Newspaper clippings. 2. Business cards, circulars, etc. 3. Catalogues, reports, speeches, and other pamphlets. 4. Bound volumes. 5. Five volumes, of about five hundred pages each, of correspondence, 6. Photographic album of classmates and their families. 7. A ledger of over four hundred pages, in which are collated and recorded the most important facts in our lives.

It is desirable that these Archives be kept up to completion, carefully preserved, and, finally, deposited in the Library of the College. Some of the latest survivors of the Class should see this done.

Will not classmates who have not done it, at once and continually contribute to this collection, as bound to do by their agreement made in graduation week, by sending notice to the Secretary of all changes or other important events in their history; also, by sending scraps, cards, circulars, photographs, pamphlets, and bound volumes? The collection will, if complete, be unique, creditable to the class, and valuable as a part of the college history. If all classes had done or would do this same work, how passing value would be the collection to the college, the historian, the antiquary, in all coming years! Let us set an example worthy of imitation.

We have indulged in no fulsome eulogies. The record of each man's life should be his best eulogy. We have tried to say a few fitting words of our starred ones. The class of 1843 has, as a whole, a good record. Its life has been one of noble doing and enduring.

If the story of one member occupies less space than that of another, it does not usually indicate less work done, but rather, less changes in residence and affairs, or failure to give the information so often called for.

We all have faults; have made mistakes; some of us very serious ones. But here is not the place to tell them. Our foes or rivals may have done that, and overdone it. Yes, and have we not told them somewhere, to somebody — to our own hearts and to Heaven? We leave them all veiled from human record, to the tenderness of divine mercy.

So far as space allows, we insert, at the close of our Memorial, statistics and tables that embody, in brief form, much that must interest members of the Class; convenient for reference and comparison. They have cost us no little labor.

Classmate Hodgman has rendered essential help in collecting and arranging matter from our correspondence and other papers.

If any member of the Class thinks he could have done better in our place, be it his privilege to stone us. We confess our chief stimulus and hope of reward have been the approval and good-will of our classmates.

No joy or sorrow, failure or triumph of a classmate, is, to us, a matter of indifference. We are one. In our immortal Webster, we have an illustrious instance of cherishing a deep, abiding, and kindly interest in classmates, amid the greatest honors and severest trials of a long and busy life. Let us be like him in this respect.

And, when our whole record is made up, may our good old Alma Mater be able to say of each one of us, Thanks to the gods, my boy has done his duty!

CLASS MEETINGS.

No class ever managed its affairs with more system than the Class that graduated at Dartmouth College in 1843.

It organized for business during its freshman year, by choosing J. Tenney permanent Secretary for the college course, and requiring all proceedings of its meetings to be duly recorded in a book kept for the purpose. Chairmen were chosen each college term.

In that blue book, were written out the sayings and doings of the Class on many an occasion then deemed momentous. Here taxes were assessed and collected. Here petitions for redress of grievances, or for special favors, were voted and addressed to the Faculty. Here words of indignation and threats of trouble were freely spoken, when our wishes were treated with dignified silence or flat denial. Here we planned excursions; reasoned of temperance; held elections; accepted the situation. Here we recorded our sentiments upon the affairs of the country, during the exciting times of "Tippecanoe and Tyler too." Here were written out the severe views of the class upon the then much mooted subject of secret societies in college; and here were enrolled the names of fifty-six of us who, months before any elections from the class took place, solemnly pledged ourselves to discountenance such societies during our college lives. Here were the details of our management of The Dartmouth. Here, too, we mourned our dead Andrews, Barrows, Murdough and Rowell, in fitting eulogy and sympathizing resolve. Tempora mutantur, et nos mutamus illis.

The last meeting of the Class as undergraduates, was held in Society Hall, Dartmouth College, on the morning of graduation day, July 27, 1843. Resolutions were adopted, among which was one appointing the next meeting of the class, at the college, on commencement day, 1850. J. Tenney was chosen permanent Class Secretary. It was agreed that stated septenary meetings should be held, and that each member of the class should, on change of residence, or the occurrence of any important event in his history, immediately forward notice to the Secretary.

A meeting, preliminary to the first septenary, was held, pursuant to a call extended to the members of the class resident in New England, at the Coburn House, in Lawrence, Mass., December 22, 1849. Present: — Adams, Bingham, Burbank, Fletcher, French, S. A. Lord, Stevens, Tenney, Tuck. These classmates dined together, and made arrangements for the approaching meeting, the first session of which, they decided to hold in Academy Hall, Hanover, N. H., Wednesday, July 24, 1850, at 8 o'clock A. M.

Circulars, giving notice of the class meeting and soliciting information, were sent to all classmates. In conducting this correspondence, the Secretary sent about two hundred letters and circulars, and received over one hundred letters.

FIRST SEPTENARY.

The Class met at Hanover, Wednesday morning, July 24, 1850, in Academy Hall, and subsequently held meetings in the same place, at 4 o'clock P. M., of same day, and at 8 o'clock A. M., on Thursday. Present:—Adams, Bailey, Brewer, Brewster, Burbank, Cilley, Colony, Dickinson, Fletcher, S. H. Freeman, E. Freeman, French, Furber, Gooch, Hodgman, Jewett, Littlefield, S. A. Lord,

W. H. Lord, H. C. Lord, Putnam, Ross, Sherman, Tenney,—twenty-four in all.

Adams was chosen Chairman. The sessions were very pleasant — enlivened by many an "ower true tale" of present members, and by fraternal epistles from most of the absent. Of the seventy-five, who, with buoyant hope, stepped from the college stage into busy scenes of life, on Thursday, July 27, 1843, nine were not. We were sad as we heard how early and how suddenly they were called away, and knew they would come into our assemblies on earth no more.

By vote of the Class, an outline of the information collected by the Secretary was prepared by him and published in a pamphlet of forty-two pages, and distributed to all members of the class and to friends of the deceased.

The members of the Class present, paid two dollars each to pay the editors of the Dartmouth for losses in publishing that work and for other class expenses.

Tenney, Adams and Cilley were appointed Committee of Publication.

On motion of W. H. Lord, voted thanks to the Secretary for his services in behalf of the class.

S. A. Lord, Gooch and Burbank were appointed Committee on Resolutions, and reported the following, which were adopted:

"Resolved, That we fondly cherish the memories of our deceased classmates; and that we deeply sympathize with their relatives and friends in the early loss of those who by nature and education, were fitted to act well their part in life."

"Resolved, That when this meeting adjourns, it adjourns to meet at this place, on the Wednesday morning preceding commencement, in the year 1857."

At 9 o'clock, Thursday, A. M., July 25, 1850, the Class adjourned.

SECOND SEPTENARY.

Met according to appointment and circular notice, in the Academy Hall, Hanover, N. H., Wednesday morning, 8 o'clock, July 29, 1857.

The Secretary called the meeting to order. Col. A. O. Brewster was chosen Chairman, who took the chair and made a handsome speech, in which he urged the fine influence of such meetings on our lives, and the importance of freedom and fraternity in them. He spoke of Daniel Webster, who always cherished his early friends and classmates with remarkable devotion, as a fine model for us.

At this and subsequent meetings during commencement week, the following classmates were present, viz:—Barnard, Bingham, Brewster, Cilley, Fisk, E. Freeman, Hodgman, S. A. Lord, W. H. Lord, H. C. Lord, Patten, Putnam, Ray, D. S. Richardson, Stuart, Tenney, Varney, A. Wood,—eighteen in all. Our interviews were very free and pleasant, in class meetings, in our social walks about the old familiar places, and in attendance upon the public literary exercises of the occasion. Money was paid, with the accustomed generosity of most of our classmates, to meet the expenses of the Secretary, and to pay J. O. Adams his claim for $28 and interest, as balance due for printing the Septenary Report of 1850.

At the suggestion of the Secretary, Varney, Tenney, and Ray were constituted a committee to present to the Trustees and Faculty of the College the request of this meeting that Guppey, who left a few weeks before graduation, be admitted to the degree of A. B., and catalogued with the class.

The request was duly presented and granted.

Bingham, Tenney and Hodgman, were made a committee to communicate to the venerable President Lord, our grateful remembrances and affectionate regards. This was subsequently done in writing.

Tenney, Putnam and Brewster, were appointed Committee of Arrangements for our next meeting,

Tenney, Varney and Hodgman, were appointed committee to publish the next Class Report, which the Secretary was requested to prepare.

On motion of H. C. Lord, pledges were made to reimburse the Secretary for any expenses he may incur in collecting, preserving, and publishing memorials and records of the class; and he was advised to inform absent members of this pledge and invite them to aid in carrying it out.

At this commencement, classmate W. H. Lord pronounced an able oration on "The Believing Spirit as the condition of development of the human Mind and Soul," before the Phi Beta Kappa Society.

THIRD SEPTENARY.

Met at Dartmouth Hotel, five o'clock P. M., July 19, 1864. Hon. D. W. Gooch was chosen Chairman. At this, and subsequent meetings, the following classmates were present, viz: — Adams, Barnard, Brewer, Brewster, Cilley, J. B. Clark, E. Freeman, French, E. W. Gale, Gooch, Hodgman, W. H. Lord, Stevens, Tenney,—fourteen in all.

The members of the class, by invitation of the orator, were present, in a body, at the Congregational Church, at eight o'clock, Wednesday evening, and listened to an appreciative, just and eloquent eulogy by Prof. S. G. Brown, upon their late classmate, Prof. John N. Putnam.

The Secretary was requested to express to Prof. Brown our estimation of the eulogy and the hope that he would publish it for the benefit of the class; also, to purchase and forward to each member of the class a copy of the same, if published.

This, the Secretary has since done.

On Wednesday, calls were made upon Profs. Brown, Sanborn and Hubbard, the surviving Professors of our college days, and, also, upon the venerated Ex-President Lord, and his worthy successor, President Smith. We were cordially received, and kind congratulations were exchanged.

With hearts glad that we had known him, but saddened at his early departure, we visited the grave of Putnam.

Much interest was excited in the examination of the Secretary's large class album, nearly full of photographs of classmates with their wives and children; of his class scrap book, containing cards, circulars, newspaper clippings, etc., of classmates; and, not least, of the class record, detailing, in systematic order, the collected facts of leading interest in the lives of each of the one hundred and four members of the class.

On these, and the Secretary's correspondence, the classmates drew, for a season, for information concerning the absent.

The Secretary was requested to prepare, as soon as material can be collected and arranged, a complete historical record of the class, and get a suitable number of copies printed for the benefit of the class. Hodgman, Varney and Adams were appointed to aid him in the work.

Classmates present expressed a willingness to pay liberally for such a work, and to aid its completion in every possible way.

Resolves, presented by Dr. Brewer, were unanimously passed, expressive of the patriotic sentiments of the class upon the questions of the day,—of their love of equal justice to all men, their devotion to the Union, and their determined purpose to aid in crushing out the unrighteous rebellion and establishing peace.

The main feature of the occasion, was a class supper at the Dartmouth Hotel, on Wednesday evening, prepared in excellent style by the landlord of the house, under the direction of Col. Brewster. It was the first supper the class, as a class, had eaten in twenty-one years. A well spread and bountifully laden board greeted the hearty guests. Well filled plates, well lined stomachs, cheerful words, and friendly feeling, made the hours pass fleetly. Col. Brewster presided; Rev. P. F. Barnard invoked the divine blessing.

The Class separated, voting to meet again at the College Centenary in 1869.

J. Tenney,
Class Secretary.

EXPLANATORY.

1. The alphabetical order of names is followed, except in the tables of births, marriages and deaths, where the chronological order is taken.

2. After names, the leading vocations are first given — not the avocations and offices; then, the residence of the living at latest dates, and the place of decease or burial of the dead.

3. We have been obliged to omit, except in some peculiar cases, history antecedent to entering college; also, places of teaching during the college course. In most cases, the ante-collegiate history would be — at home assisting parents, or attending or teaching school. Nearly every one taught during winter vacations.

4. D. C., following a name and followed by figures, denotes graduate of Dartmouth in such a year.

5. The place of marriage is named, if the rite does not take place at the parental residence of the wife.

6. The place of children's birth or decease is to be presumed to be at the residence of the parents at the time, unless otherwise designated.

7. So far as possible, original copy or printer's proof has been sent to each classmate for final revision.

MEMBERS

GRADUATED AT DARTMOUTH,

1843.

JAMES OSGOOD ADAMS.

Printer; Editor; Manchester, Hillsborough Co., N. H.

Born,—Concord, N. H., June 5, 1818.

Parents,—Robert M., of Salisbury, Mass., and Damaris (Eastman) Adams, of Corinth, Vt.

In early life he learned the trade of printer, in the office of the New Hampshire Observer, Concord, N. H., under Rev. David Kimball.

His preparatory course for college was pursued in Lyndon Academy, Vt., under tuition of his brother, Rev. Ezra E. Adams, D.D., D.C., 1836.

He was principal of Lyndon Academy, Vt., from September, 1843 to July, 1845, and of a select school in Candia, N. H., in the autumn of 1845.

He settled in Manchester, N. H., December, 1845, and has, ever since, made that city his home. For nine years, he was editor and publisher of the Manchester American, during which time he established and, for six years, published and edited the Granite Farmer. He is now associated with classmate Clarke, as editor of the Mirror and American.

While teaching in Lyndon, he read law with Bartlett & Fletcher, continuing in Manchester with Hon. David Cross, D.C., 1841. Was never admitted to the bar.

Adams has the pen of a ready writer, and is an apt, off-hand speaker. His editorials, addresses, reports on the schools of Manchester, and agricultural reports and essays, if all put in book form, would fill many large volumes.

He has been an active worker in the busy city of which he is a citizen, especially in the interests of public education. To no citizen is the city so much indebted for its fine school buildings and its excellent school system. He has held these public offices in Manchester, viz:— Clerk of Ward 6, 1846; Ward Moderator, 1849, '50, '61 to '67; member of Common Council, 1847, '48; President of Common Council, 1848; member of School Committee, 1852, '53, '59, '60; Superintendent of Public Instruction, 1855 to '59, 1860 to 1867; Representative in the New Hampshire state legislature, 1852, '53, '64, '65, '69.

For five years, he was Secretary of the New Hampshire Agricultural Society, and edited the first five printed volumes of its Transactions. He was delegate from this Society to the World's Fair in London, 1851.

April 3, 1851, he married Lucy Payson, daughter of Dea. Eben C. Foster, of Manchester, and took a trip to Europe, returning in October, 1851. Mrs. A. died in Manchester, February 11, 1852.

October 3, 1855, he married, in Nashua, N. H., Eliza Ellen, daughter of Joseph Everett, of Manchester. She died March 22, 1861.

August, 1862, he married Susan Augusta Everett, of Manchester, sister of his second wife.

CHILDREN.

2. Ezra Eastman,	" Aug. 26, 1860.
3. James Henry,	" May 13, 1863;	" Sept. 28, 1866.
4. Luella Augusta,	" May 17, 1864.
5. Susie Bell,	" March 20, 1866.

GEORGE HENRY ATKINSON.

Pastor of Congregational Church; Portland, Oregon.

Born,—Newbury, Mass., May 10, 1819.

Parents,—William and Anna (Little) Atkinson, daughter of Col. Josiah Little, of Newbury, Mass. Dr. Moses Little Atkinson, D.C., 1838, is his brother. His parents moved from Newbury, Mass., and settled in Newbury, Vt., in his early childhood.

He prepared for college at Newbury Seminary and Bradford Academy, Vt. Taught a select school in E. Corinth, Vt., in the autumn of 1843, at the close of which, he entered Andover Theological Seminary, and graduated in course, September 2, 1846. Was licensed by the Orange Association, Vt., in the autumn of 1846, and ordained as an evangelist, at Newbury, Vt., January, 1847.

In October, 1847, he sailed from Boston, via Cape Horn and the Sandwich Islands, for Oregon, under the patronage of the American Home Missionary Society, as its first missionary to the Pacific coast, and was installed pastor of the Congregational Church in Oregon City, June 17, 1848. Continued in that position until 1863, when he went to Portland, in the same state.

He has labored assiduously and successfully to plant the educational and religious institutions of New England in Oregon. In the cause of popular and liberal learning, he has been very efficient. Has been Superintendent of Schools in Clackamas and Multnomah counties. Is one of the founders of Tualatin Academy; also, of the Pacific University, of which he has been one of the Trustees, and Secretary of the board, from 1848 to the present time. To secure funds and teachers for these institutions, and to promote the cause of learning and of Christ in Oregon, he visited the New England and other northern states, in 1852, in 1865, and in 1868. During the visit of 1852, he attended the National Congregational Convention in Albany, N. Y., as delegate from Oregon.

He was delegate from Oregon, to the National Congregational Council, held in Boston, June 14th to 25th, 1865; and, also, during the same summer, to the Congregational Association of Massachusetts, and the Congregational Conference of Maine.

On petition of several of his classmates, the degree of D.D., was conferred upon him at Dartmouth, July, 1865.

He has been, for some years, Secretary and Agent of the American Tract Society in Oregon, and a Director of the Bible Society. He has written much, in the interest of his work, for the Home Missionary and other periodicals on the Atlantic coast. Has published two sermons,—one upon Preaching Christ, delivered at the ordination of Rev. Thomas Condon, in 1853; the other on Church Polity, before the Oregon Association, in 1859.

He writes, "My sabbath work is constant and fourfold,—morning sermon; bible class of young men at noon; afternoon sermon at some out-station; evening sermon in my church. This has, for the most part, been my work for a long time. Last year we received fifty members into our church."

He married, October 8, 1846, Miss Nancy, daughter of Dea. Phineas Bates, of Springfield, Vt.

CHILDREN.

JAMES MONROE BAILEY.

Free Baptist Clergyman; Professor in Theological Seminary; New Hampton, Belknap Co., N. H.

Born,—Andover, N. H., March 3, 1817.

Parents,—James and Sarah (Davis) Bailey.

He prepared for college at the Literary Institution, New Hampton, N. H., under Hon. W. E. Wording.

His professional studies were pursued at Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1846.

He was ordained and became pastor of the Free-will Baptist church in West Buxton, Me., Feb., 1847, where he remained eight years. From Jan., 1855, he was in charge of the Casco St. church, Portland, Me., one year; from 1856 to 1859, preached in Saco, Me.; from 1859 to 1862, in Manchester, N. H., and, returning to reside in Saco, he supplied the church in Great Falls, N. H., from 1862 to 1866.

In Aug., 1866, he accepted the appointment of Professor of Sacred Literature and Homiletics in the Free Baptist Theological Institute at New Hampton, N. H.

He had been an associate editor of the Morning Star, Dover, N. H., for more than twenty years, and has contributed largely to its columns. Actively interested in promoting popular education, he was, for several years, one of the School Committee of West Buxton, and Supervisor of Schools in Saco.

He is one of the Trustees of the New Hampton Literary Institution, and a prominent clergyman in the earnest and progressive religious denomination of which he is a member.

He was married, Sept. 14, 1847, to Ethelinda, daughter of Dea. Joseph Hobson, of West Buxton, Me.

CHILDREN.

PLINY FISK BARNARD.

Pastor of the Congregational Church; Williamstown, Orange Co., Vt.

Born,—Waitsfield, Vt., Nov. 9, 1820.

Parents,—Ebenezer and Experience (Childs) Barnard.

He prepared for college in the academies at Jericho and Montpelier, Vt.

He taught a select school from Sept., 1843 to March, 1844, at White River village, in Hartford, Vt.; also, similar schools in Waterford, Me., in the autumns of 1844 and 1845, and in Searsport, Me., in the spring of 1846.

He studied theology at Bangor Theological Seminary, graduating in 1846.

He was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in Richmond, Me., January 14, 1847; remained there until he was dismissed, June 19, 1856.

He went immediately to Williamstown, Vt., and became acting pastor of the Congregational Church in that place; was installed as pastor, Sept. 19, 1860.

He was, several years, a member of the School Committee in Richmond, and has held the same office in Williamstown in the years 1867, '68, '69.

For six weeks, as delegate of the Christian Commission, he served in the United States army, in the spring of 1864.

He is a faithful and successful pastor and preacher.

He married, Nov. 4, 1846, Julia, daughter of Rev. James Hobart, D. C., 1794, of Berlin, Vt., and sister of Timothy D. Hobart, D. C., 1851.

HARRY BINGHAM.

Attorney at Law; Littleton, Grafton Co., N. H.

Born,—Concord, Vt., March 30, 1821.

Parents,—Warner and Lucy (Wheeler) Bingham.

His preparatory course was pursued in Lyndon Academy, Vt., under Rev. E. E. Adams, D.D., D. C., 1836.

After leaving college, he studied law with Hon. Harry Hibbard, D. C., 1836, of Bath, N. H., and was admitted to the bar of Grafton county in 1846, at which time he began his professional career at Littleton, N. H., where he has since resided.

He was a member of the House of Representatives from Littleton, in the legislature of New Hampshire, five years, from 1861 to 1865 inclusive. During this time, he occupied a prominent and influential position in that body, as a bold and vigorous debater, a skillful manager and prudent law maker.

He is esteemed as one of the ablest leaders and champions of the New Hampshire democracy. He was, several times, their candidate for Speaker of the House; also, for Representative in the United States Congress of the 3d Congressional District, in opposition to James W. Patterson, D. C., 1848, in 1865, and to Jacob Benton in 1867. He was delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia in August, 1866; was special agent of United States Treasury for N. E., during the latter part of Mr. Johnson's administration. He is the member of the present National Democratic Committee for New Hampshire. Has been Justice of the Peace since 1846.

He ranks among the most successful in his profession in New Hampshire, and is claimed by his friends to be one of the best judges of law in New England. His law partner is his brother, Hon. Geo. A. Bingham.

CYRUS LEWIS BLANCHARD.

Attorney at Law; Chestertown, Warren Co., N. Y.

Born,—Rockingham, Vt., February 11, 1818.

Parents,—Jonathan and Polly (Lovell) Blanchard. He is brother of Rev. Jonathan Blanchard, D.D., formerly President of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., and now President of Wheaton Institute, Ill. He is the youngest of twelve children.

After leaving college, where, like many others, he paddled his own canoe up stream, he taught an academy in Brookville, Ind., in 1845, and was afterward a teacher in the primary department of Knox College.

He studied law with Kellogg & Hale of Elizabethtown, Essex Co., N. Y., and was admitted to the bar, at Plattsburgh, N. Y., 1849, and began immediately to practice in Schroon Lake village, Essex Co., N. Y.

He held the office of Clerk of the courts of Essex Co., N. Y., and was Supervisor of Schroon, N. Y., in 1864–5. From Schroon, he went to Ticonderoga, N. Y., June 26, 1863, and there practiced law until his removal to Chestertown, Warren Co., June 27, 1865. Here he continued his law practice until his decease, April 26, 1866. His health had been declining for several months. Jaundice set in and further reduced his strength, so that he fell an easy prey to erysipelas, which caused his death after only six days of confinement to his house. His remains were buried in Chestertown.

From his friends, we learn that he was a friend of the needy, an honest counselor, an able advocate, and successful in his business, leaving his family, which still resides in Chestertown, in comfortable circumstances. He is spoken of as a skillful debater, bold in his manner, and original in his matter. He fearlessly defended what he deemed right and denounced what he deemed wrong, regardless of personal considerations. Though a public professor of religion, he absented himself from church ordinances for some years, because he deemed its ministers too cowardly in defense of human right.

At the outbreak of the rebellion, he took strong grounds for the Union, and often spoke in public, in defense of the Old Flag. He never asked for a leader; always took his own measure of men; formed his own opinions; asked no quarter in a fight. His eccentricity; his ardent zeal in any cause in which he interested himself, will be well remembered by his classmates. No one doubted his sincerity; few cared to have him for an antagonist in a cause that called for work or debate.

He married Mary Ann, daughter of John Gardner, of Whitehall, N. Y., August 5, 1857.

ANDREW JEWETT BLOOD.

Teacher; Kelsey, Eldorado Co., California.

Born,—Pepperell, Mass., August 9, 1822.

Parents,—John and Susan (Jewett) Blood.

His father was a veteran school-master, having taught thirty-two winters.

He prepared for college in the academy in his native town under the instruction of Rev. E. D. Eldridge, and Rev. Geo. Cooke, D. C., 1832. After graduating, he went to St. Louis, Mo., where he followed teaching until the spring of 1844. During the next summer, he taught in Franklin, Mo. From thence, he went to New Mexico, where he spent two years traveling, paying his expenses as companion to an invalid, or as clerk for a trading company. Then returning to Missouri, he was engaged in teaching for about four years at St. Joseph, Buchanan Co. In May, 1850, he started, in a company of one hundred and twenty persons, for California, via Santa Fe. He died on the way thither at Kelsey, California, within forty miles of Sacramento, after fifteen days sickness, of brain fever, September 9, 1850. He was last heard from alive, by friends, July 25th, about five hundred miles from Sacramento.

He seems to have possessed a love of travel and adventure, not understood by his classmates.

He lived only seven years after graduation. This period was spent away from the friends of his youth. He was not a large correspondent, and but little is known of his intellectual development or of his successes and disappointments during this time. He died among strangers, and the place of his burial is unknown to his New England friends. His Missouri friends reported his decease; spoke of him in very kind terms, and transmitted a few books and other mementoes only, to his relatives.

He held a good rank as a scholar, was kind and genial as a friend, with a character without reproach in the memories of his college life.

He sleeps and is at rest.

FRANCIS BEATTIE BREWER.

Physician; Manufacturer; Farmer; Westfield, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.

Born,—Keene, N. H., Oct. 8, 1820.

Parents,—Ebenezer, of Sidney, Cape Breton, and Julia (Emerson) Brewer, of Windsor, Vt.

His earlier years were spent in Barnet, Vt., where his father was engaged in lumbering and mercantile business.

His preparation for college was made at Newbury Seminary, Vt., and at Meriden Academy, N. H. After graduating, he was engaged in teaching, for several months, in Barnet and in Peacham Academy, Vt.

He commenced the study of medicine in Barnet, with Dr. William G. Nelson, in 1843, continuing with him one year. He then attended lectures and studied with the Medical Faculty in Hanover, N. H., nine months, and finished his medical course with Dr. W. W. Gerhard, of Philadelphia. He received the degree of M.D., at Dartmouth Medical College, in 1846, and began at once to practice in Barnet, Vt. In Dec., 1849, he removed to Plymouth, Mass., where he remained two years in the practice of medicine.

In 1851, he went to Titusville, Penn., and actively engaged an extensive lumbering and mercantile business, under the firm of Brewer, Watson & Co. This firm owned several thousand acres of timbered land along Oil Creek and its tributaries. On their land, and near one of their mills, was an old well remarkable for producing oil. This oil was extensively used as a medicine, and was collected by absorbing the oil from the surface of the water with woolen blankets.

In 1852, the idea of using it in the lumber mills, both as an illuminator and lubricator, occurred to Dr. Brewer. The well was enlarged and deepened. A pump was placed in position and worked by wires attached to machinery in the mill. In this way a large amount of oil was produced. Thus began the oil business. From this date, Dr. Brewer gave his time, means and efforts to the best manner of producing and utilizing this valuable product. Although often discouraged, never disheartened, success, at last, crowned the enterprise which he justly claims to have conceived, planned and developed, and which is likely to prove the great discovery of the age. In the fall of 1864, George H. Bissell, D. C., 1845, and A. H. Crosby, D. C., 1848, became interested with Dr. Brewer in the business.

In 1861, he removed to Westfield, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., where he now resides, owning a farm of two hundred acres, well stocked, and beautifully located on the shore of Lake Erie, which he carries on, at the same time managing his interests in the petroleum business and in other manufacturing. He is doing, also, a large commission business, under the firm of Brewer, Burke & Co., in Pittsburgh, Pa., and in New York city, also, under the firm of Brewer, Watson & Co. He is President of the Townsend Manufacturing Company, Westfield, N. Y., in which he is a large owner, which carries on an extensive hardware business. He is, also, President of the First National Bank of Westfield.

In the spring and summer of 1865, he spent several months in Sherman's army as Military Agent of the state of New York, with the rank of Major. His business has led him to travel widely in this country, and to visit Europe.

His energy and skill in business, it is understood, have been rewarded with eminent success, without spoiling him as a man.

He was married, July 20, 1848, to Susan H., daughter of Rev. Prof. Heman Rood, formerly of Gilmanton Theological Seminary, then of Haverhill, N. H.

AUGUSTUS OLCOTT BREWSTER.

Attorney at law; Boston, Mass.

Born,— Hanover, N. H., May 17, 1823.

Parents,— Gen. Amos Avery and Susan (Boudinot) Brewster.

His preparatory course was pursued at the academy in Meriden, N. H., and under the late Rt. Rev. Bishop John H. Hopkins, D.D., of Burlington, Vt.

After graduating, he read law with Chief Justice Ira Perley, D. C., 1822, of Concord, N. H., and Wm. H. Duncan, Esq., D. C., 1830, of Hanover, N. H.

After practicing law a few years in Hanover, during which time he was active in promoting agriculture and other public interests in his native state, and, for a short time, in New York city in 1850, '51, and '52, Col. Brewster opened a law office in 1852, in Court St., Boston, where he still resides and practices his profession.

In 1855, he was appointed, by Gov. Gardner, Chairman of the Board of Insurance Commissioners for Massachusetts, which office he resigned after one year's service, in order to resume the practice of law.

In 1856, he was appointed, by Gov. Gardner, Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk Co., which office he held for six years — the last two years, acting as District Attorney. Since vacating this position, he has been extensively engaged in prosecuting and defending criminal causes.

He has been very active in politics; is a vigorous and popular stump speaker, in much demand, during political campaigns, in and out of the state. It has been humorously said that, when Col. Brewster speaks, on these occasions, upon the hills of the Bay State, the farmers of Berkshire and the fishermen of Cape Cod suspend their work, and, from their own homes, in silence, listen to his eloquence. Has often appeared, not only in the caucus, but as lecturer before agricultural and other associations.

For many years, he has acted as Chief Marshal on Commencement days at Dartmouth. In this capacity, for which a powerful voice and good porte so eminently fit him, he has been very efficient and popular. All the older alumni recognize in him the ready skill, the dignified and graceful bearing of his honored father, who, for many years, acted so acceptably in the same place.

He was an active Director of the New Hampshire Agricultural Society; and, in 1847, was appointed Aid to Gov. A. Colby, of New Hampshire, with rank of Colonel.

At Parsippany, N. J., August 20, 1846, he married Georgie Augusta, daughter of Maj. George B. Bibby, United States Army, of Patterson, N. J.

CHILDREN.

2. Susan Boudinot, " May 15, 1850; died Sept. 8, 1851.
3. William Malleville, " Aug. 15, 1852.

LEVI BRIGHAM.

Teacher; Port Tobacco, Charles Co., Md.

Born,— Concord, N. H., May 2, 1822.

Parents,— Levi and Anna Hazen (Ayer) Brigham.

He was early left an orphan, and placed under the guardianship of his uncle, Hon. Richard Bradley, of Concord.

His preparation for college was made in Concord.

His only sister, Anna S., a woman of great worth, was the first wife of Hon. John H. George, of Concord.

Soon after leaving college, he went to Port Tobacco, Md., as tutor in a papal family. He died in that place, of congestive fever, after ten days illness, October 1, 1843. Here he was buried. A monument has been erected over his grave by his Concord friends. He was the first of the graduated classmates to finish his earthly course.

His nature was social, generous, and obliging; his mind was active and intelligent. He resolved, after graduating, to lead a better life; and his few remaining weeks were consistent with this resolve.

Mr. Pye, his constant attendant during his last illness, who seems an excellent man, says that Brigham became reconciled to the final event, and met the king of terrors with great calmness.

Death thou art infinite; 'tis life is little.

ROBERT INGALLS BURBANK.

Attorney at Law; Boston, Mass.

Born,—Shelburne, N. H., March 26, 1818.

Parents,—Hon. Barker and Polly (Ingalls) Burbank. Three other sons, Alcander, Barker Leland and Parker Cleveland, graduated at Dartmouth, the former as M.D., in 1848, and the latter two in the Scientific Department, in 1857.

He pursued his preparatory course for college at North Yarmouth and Bethel, Me., and Lancaster, N. H., and entered in March, 1840.

After spending the autumn and winter succeeding his graduation, at the Dane Law School, he entered the office of the Hon. Daniel Webster, D.C., 1801, and Hon. John P. Healy, D.C., 1845, then partners at 46 Court St., Boston, as a student, and remained there until he was admitted to Suffolk County Bar, Oct. 6, 1846.

Oct. 27, 1846, he commenced practice at 46 Court St., Boston, where he has ever since remained, enjoying the confidence of his clients and of the Bar, and succeeding well in the "main object of the law." A part of this time, he has been partner with the Hon. Mr. Healy, the present City Solicitor.

In 1855 and 1856, he was a member of the City Council. In 1854, 1856 and 1862, he represented Boston in the Massachusetts House of Representatives; and in 1857 and 1858, was Senator from Suffolk County.

In Dec., 1865, he was elected Commissioner of Insolvency for Suffolk County; Feb. 1, 1867, was appointed Master in Chancery for Suffolk County, and, May 16, 1867, Notary Public.

He has often presided over public assemblies, and marshaled large public processions. He was Grand Marshal of the New England Torch Light Procession in Boston, on the occasion of the election of Lincoln, in Nov., 1860.

He is very happy as a public speaker, whether in off hand after dinner speeches, on the stump, or in legislative debate.

The affair of a wager involving a barrel of apples, between him and Ben. Perley Poore, during the Fremont-Filmore-Buchanan Campaign of 1856, which resulted in Col. Poore's paying the forfeit by wheeling a barrel of his apples to Boston, in November of that year, as a gift to Col. Burbank, who had won the wager, was reported in all the papers of the time, and did credit to the honor and wit of both parties.

In 1856–7, he was one of the Visitors on the part of the State, to Dane Law School. In 1865 and '66, he was a member of the School Committee of Boston.

In military affairs he was, in 1865, Major of the Third Battalion of Massachusetts Infantry. In 1856, he was Lieutenant Colonel, and, soon after, promoted to Colonel of the 1st Regiment of Massachusetts Infantry. His great energy and efficiency as an officer, did much to prepare the militia of Boston for successful service in the field during the Rebellion.

When the Rebellion of 1861 broke out, he assisted, with loyal enthusiasm, in raising two Regiments as the basis of a Brigade, which was to be under his command.

But, while the Brigade was in process of organization, the Government issued an order requiring infantry troops to be sent by Regiments only, and thus he was deprived of honors in the field. He was a delegate to the National Convention, at Baltimore, which renominated President Lincoln.

July 8, 1862, he married Lizzie Wheeler, daughter of the Hon. Daniel M. Christie, LL.D., D.C., 1815, of Dover, N. H. On the same day, he started on a wedding trip of several months, through the most interesting parts of Europe.

CHILDREN.

1. Daniel Christie, born April 16, 1863; died Nov. 26, 1865.
2. Walter Channing, " July 9, 1865.

JOHN LEE CAVERLY.

Teacher; Madison, Morgan Co., Ga.

Born,— Strafford, N. H., Oct. 28, 1818.

Parents,— John and Olive (Jenness) Caverly.

His preparatory studies were pursued at Gilmanton and Strafford Academies. He entered March, 1840.

After graduating, he went to Madison, Morgan Co., Ga., and became Principal of the Male Academy there. In this position he continued scarcely one year, when he was attacked with bilious fever, and, after a week's illness, died at the residence of Peter W. Walton, Esq., Sept. 25, 1844.

Joseph Bean, of Gilmanton, and three others, natives of New Hampshire, buried both Caverly and Copp; and, by a subscription of $10 each, erected suitable monuments at their graves.

In person, Caverly was tall and commanding. His obliging disposition, united with a dignified and courteous bearing, inspired a sentiment of sincere esteem and confidence in all his classmates. His mind was strong; his rank as a scholar high. His attainments were solid rather than brilliant. An obituary of him appeared in the Augusta Weekly Chronicle of Nov. 7, 1844, which says: "Mr. Caverly had charge of the Male Academy in this place, (Madison) at the time of his decease, and the loss of his valuable services in that important station is greatly felt by this community. Though he had resided among us but a few months, he had, by his unaffected kindness and gentlemanly deportment, won the esteem of all who had made his acquaintance."

His memory will ever be green with the friends of his early days.— March on among the immortals, thou noble freed spirit!

FRANCIS BARUCH CHASE.

Teacher; Cornish, Sullivan Co., N. H.

Born,— Cornish, N. H., March 26, 1819.

Parents,— Col. Lebbeus Chase and Nizaula (March) Chase. Dudley T., D. C., 1848, is a brother. His preparation for College was made at the Academy in Windsor, Vt., and at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H.

After his graduation, he went as a teacher to Lexington, Oglethorpe Co., Georgia.

His health was not good during the summer and fall of 1844. About the first of December, he started for home by way of Charleston, S. C. When he arrived in New York City, Dec. 10th, he was entirely unable to help himself, and was carried from the vessel to the United States Hotel, where, two days after, on Dec. 12, 1844, he expired. We must not pluck death from the Maker's hand. He had those around him who did every thing possible to alleviate his sufferings and make him comfortable. He died as he lived, a true man. Classmate Hodgman was present at his funeral. The services were conducted by Rev. James Milnor, D.D. His body was conveyed to Cornish, and lies in the family burial place near the Episcopal church.

BRADBURY POOR CILLEY.

Attorney at Law; Manchester, N. H.

Born,—Nottingham, N. H., January 2, 1824.

Parents,—Jacob, son of Gen. Joseph Cilley of Nottingham, and Harriet (Poor) Cilley, daughter of Gen. Enoch Poor of Exeter, N. H.

He fitted for College at Phillips Academy, Exeter, under the venerated Benjamin Abbott, and Gideon L. Soule, LL. D., Principals.

More than a year after graduation he spent in his native town. In Oct., 1844, he entered the Law School in New Haven, Conn., and read law one year with Prof. Hitchcock. He then went to Manchester, N. H., and pursued his legal studies two years with Hon. Daniel Clark, D. C., 1834, and was admitted to the Bar in Hillsborough Co., N. H., Nov. 6, 1847. He immediately commenced the practice of law in Manchester.

Cilley has enlivened many a gathering with his apt, off hand speeches; and has been a skillful counselor in several important criminal causes.

Of the City, he has been an Alderman; also, Republican candidate for Mayor, within but few votes of an election. His friends have made him a prominent caucus candidate for State Senator. In 1859, he was a member of the Staff of Gov. Ichabod Goodwin, with rank of Colonel. For many years, he was Clerk and Treasurer of that distinguished association of military men called the "Amoskeag Veterans," and a Captain in the same. He is a Trustee of the City Savings Bank. Since 1867, he has been Post Master of Manchester.

He married, June 30, 1856, Angeline, daughter of Dea. Nahum Baldwin, of Manchester, N. H.

CHILDREN.

1. Martha Poor, born Feb. 20, 1859.

FRANCIS BROWN CLARK.

Physician; Expressman; Jamestown, Tuolumne Co., Cal.

Born,—Wells, Me., Nov. 22, 1820.

Parents,—Theodore and Elizabeth (Gilman) Clark.

One of his sisters is the wife of Rev. Joseph Blake of Gilmanton, N. H., and another was the wife of Rev. J. B. Cooke of Wells, Me.

His preparatory studies for college were pursued at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., Samuel H. Taylor, LL.D., D.C., 1832, Principal.

On leaving college he studied medicine awhile. He had charge of the Academy in South Berwick, Me., in 1844–5.

He received the degree of M.D., at Bowdoin Medical College, in May, 1847, and practiced his profession a year or two in Boston, Mass., and in Wells, Me.

In April, 1849, he joined the Pacific Emigration Company, and embarked in the ship York for California. He followed his profession successfully for the first few years of his residence in that state.

In 1854, engaged in mining, farming and trade. For several years, he was largely engaged in teaming to and from Stockton and other places. He had some misfortune in business, in 1857; but, instead of going into bankruptcy, held on, his creditors confiding in his integrity, and finally succeeded, in 1861, in paying all his debts. He was one of the too few honest business men. During most of his sojourn in California, he resided in Jamestown.

He died of typhoid fever, after an illness of one week, at Empire City, Cal., Oct. 11, 1864. His grave is at Jamestown, Cal. No particulars of his sickness and death have been obtained. There is reason to know that he was much respected in the community in which he resided, as all who knew him in college will readily believe.

His quaint humor, his genial companionship, his unbending integrity, will make his memory pleasant to his classmates. He has left a clean record as a citizen, business man, and Christian.

JOHN BADGER CLARKE.

Lawyer; Editor and Publisher; Manchester, Hillsborough Co., N. H.

Born,— Atkinson, N. H., January 30, 1820.

Parents,— Greenleaf and Julia (Cogswell) Clarke.

His mother was sister of William Cogswell, D. C., 1811, Rev. Nathaniel Cogswell, D. C., 1819, and Francis Cogswell, D. C., 1822.

Hon. Wm. C. Clarke, of Manchester, D. C., 1832, Attorney General of New Hampshire; Hon. Greenleaf Clarke, Atkinson; Francis Clarke, M. D., Andover, Mass., and Moses Clarke, M.D., East Cambridge, Mass., are his brothers.

He pursued his preparation for college under Hon. John Kelley, at Atkinson Academy. After graduating, he was three years Principal of Gilford Academy, N. H., pursuing the study of law, at the same time, with Hon. S. C. Lyford. He then went to Manchester, and continued his legal studies with his brother, Hon. W. C. Clarke, until January, 1849. He was then admitted to the Bar, in Hillsborough Co. Feb. 2, 1849, he started for California; was eleven weeks on the Isthmus; and reached San Francisco, August 14. He was in the Southern Mines of California, thirteen months, mining and practicing law. Leaving for Central America, and spending a few months there, he returned to Manchester, in Jan., 1851.

In March following, he went to Salem, Mass., with the intention of practicing law; but soon returned to Manchester. Early in the year 1852, he became editor of the Daily Mirror, in Manchester, N. H., having had some previous editorial experience as one of the editors of the Temperance Banner. Oct. 20, 1852, relinquishing the practice of law, he bought out the Mirror, and has since devoted himself to it, as its Editor, Proprietor and Publisher, with extraordinary zeal and success. After carrying on his Mirror, issued both Daily and Weekly, for some years, conducted independent of sect or party, as the organ of any and all kinds of live topics, he bought the Democrat, American, and Journal of Agriculture; merged the four in the Manchester Mirror and American, which he now publishes as a political and agricultural journal. He carries on, also, a large book and job office.

As a writer he is terse, piquant and positive. His paper is leading and popular; always on time with latest news and free discussions of all sorts; sparing neither friends nor foes when he has a point to carry or readers to entertain.

He was a member of the Baltimore Convention of June, 1864, which renominated Abraham Lincoln; and one of the members of the National Executive Committee, which managed that presidental campaign.

He was appointed one of the Trustees of the State Agricultural College, in 1866; and was elected State Printer, in 1867, '68.

He married in Boston, Mass., July 29, 1852, Susan Greeley, daughter of Enoch Moulton, of Gilmanton, N. H.

CHILDREN.

LORENZO CLAY.

Attorney at Law; Gardiner, Kennebec Co., Me.

Born,— Candia, N. H., Nov. 5, 1817.

Parents,— Walter and Dolly (Pillsbury) Clay.

They both died in the winter of 1823, leaving him, with three brothers, one older and two younger than himself, fatherless, and motherless, and penniless. He was placed in care of an uncle in Candia, until his 14th year. He then went to Charlestown, now Somerville, Mass., in the employ of a market gardener; and, in due time, was admitted to partnership with him in the business.

Returning to New Hampshire at the age of 19 years, he commenced studying with the Rev. Mr. Utley of Epping, N. H., and, mainly, through his influence, was induced to prepare for college. He spent a year and half in South Berwick, Me., under the instruction of Prof. Stephen Chase, D. C., 1832, and finished his preparation in Andover, Mass., under the tuition of Samuel H. Taylor, LL. D., D. C., 1832, and Rev. Joseph Bartlett, D. C., 1835.

Soon after graduating, he commenced the study of law with Hon. Charles Marsh, D. C., 1786, of Woodstock, Vt., with whom he remained one year. He next entered the office of Hon. George Evans of Gardiner, Me., and, after studying a year, was admitted to the Kennebec Co. Bar, in August, 1845. He, at once, formed a partnership with Mr. Evans and has, ever since, resided in Gardiner in the successful practice of his profession, enjoying the esteem of his fellow-citizens. His few leisure hours are devoted to fruit culture and like rural pursuits.

He has been member and President of City Common Council, four years; City Solicitor, four years; Alderman and acting Mayor.

For the years 1863 and 1864, he was a prominent working member of the Legislature of Maine. He was elected State's Attorney for Kennebec Co., for a term of three years from Jan. 1, 1865.

He married, Sept. 1, 1846, at the Astor House, New York City, Abby, daughter of Benjamin Bourne, Esq., of Sandwich, Mass.

NATHAN CLEAVES.

Physician; State of Cohahuila, Mexico.

Born,— Mount Vernon, N. H., Feb. 2, 1819.

Parents,— Joshua and Elizabeth (Lincoln) Cleaves.

His studies for college were pursued at Pepperell Academy, Mass., and at Meriden, N. H., under C. S. Richards, LL.D., D.C., 1835.

Immediately after graduating, he taught in Manchester, N. H., one year; thence he went to Woodstock, Conn., and taught one term. He left that place in Nov., 1844, and was next teaching a school at Buzzard's Roost, Franklin Co., Ala., which he commenced in January, 1845. In the spring of 1847, his health became very poor; but he continued in school until September of that year, when he was obliged to give up. He started with the intention of proceeding to St. Louis and homeward, if his health improved; if not, to New Orleans and still farther south. But his friends heard nothing from him during the last eighteen months of his life. In March, 1849, notice of his death appeared in the New Orleans Crescent. A letter from one J. P. Webster, Esq., who knew him in Mexico, under date of May 25, 1849, gives all that is known to his friends of the tragic event. "In the month of January, I happened to be in the State of Cohahuila, at a place called Presidio Rio Grande, where I made the acquaintance of Dr. Nathan Cleaves..... I left Presidio and came here, where I reside (Guerrero). His intention was to locate in this place, in the practice of medicine. After waiting three months, and not hearing from him, I wrote to Presidio, and yesterday received a letter informing me, that he left that place about twenty days after I came away, in company with two negroes — Texas runaway slaves — who persuaded him not to go with a Mexican, but they would show him the road and go with him to Loredo. He, being a stranger, and naturally afraid of the Mexicans, intrusted his life to them, and they decoyed him, six miles from town, and cruelly murdered him, beating out his brains with a club. One of the negroes came back into town a short time after, boasted of the murder and exhibited some of the Doctor's effects. The Alcalde caused him to be arrested for the crime which he acknowledged, and he was taken out the same day and shot by the National Guards."

Cleaves was a close student; amiable in temper; retiring in manner; upright in his character. He had no enemies among his classmates.

His medical studies were pursued privately, or with resident physicians.

GEORGE DANFORTH COLONY.

Physician; Fitchburg, Worcester Co., Mass.

Born,—Keene, N. H., May 6, 1821.

Parents,—Josiah and Hannah (Taylor) Colony.

For more than fifty years, his father was a successful manufacturer of woolen fabrics in Keene, and six brothers pursue the same business in Keene and vicinity.

His preparatory course was pursued in Keene, under Rev. Breed Batcheller, D. C., 1835, except two terms at Meriden, N. H.

Soon after leaving Dartmouth, he commenced the study of medicine in Keene under the tuition of Dr. Amos Twitchell, D. C., 1802. In the spring of 1844, he attended Medical Lectures in Woodstock, Vt.; in the winters of 1844–5, and 1845–6, in Philadelphia, receiving his degree of M. D., in course, at the University of Pennsylvania, in the spring of 1846. In Sept., 1846, after a brief leisure from study, he commenced the practice of medicine in Athol, Mass., steadily increasing, during his residence there, in professional reputation and in general esteem.

In 1861, he went to Fitchburg, Mass., where he now resides. Professionally and socially his relations are very pleasant. He has enough of material wealth. He enjoys the confidence of his fellow-citizens in a very high degree. His attention has never been diverted from his business by the allurements of civil offices which have been tendered him; his greatest ambition being success in the practice of medicine. He has succeeded.

He has been, for a long time, a Fellow and officer of the Worcester North Medical Society, and has performed his full share of active duty therein in the matter of essays, annual addresses and other work.

He has been an active and judicious friend of education, serving many years and preparing sound and able educational reports as School Committee, both in Athol and Fitchburg.

He married, in Athol, Mass., May 23, 1849, Harriet Newell, daughter of Isaac and Eunice (Backus) Stevens, the latter a grand-daughter of Rev. Isaac Backus, D. D., prominent among the early Baptists of this country.

PHINEAS COOKE.

Teacher; Barton, Lowndes Co., Miss.

Born,— Acworth, N. H., June 14, 1820.

Parents,— Rev. Phineas Cooke, who was born in Hadley, Mass., and graduated from Williams College, and Sophia (Grout) Cooke, of Keene, N. H.

George Cooke, D. C., 1832, and Henry Grout Cooke, D. C., 1841, are his brothers.

His earlier years were spent in Acworth and Lebanon, N. H., where his father was, for many years, a highly esteemed minister of the gospel. He pursued his preparatory studies at Meriden, N. H.

After leaving college, he read law, for about a year and half, in New York City; but soon relinquished it and commenced the business of teaching. He was the first

Superintendent of the first public schools in Jackson, Miss.; but, as the office proved too laborious for him, he resigned it before the expiration of one year.

He subsequently taught in other places in that state and in St. Louis, Mo.

He was not wanting in ability. He possessed a special talent for music, and often engaged in teaching both the vocal and instrumental departments of that science. If devotion to music, easy good nature, and poor health united to impair his intellectual record in college, no mark here or elsewhere, that we ever knew, stands against his name, for lack of courtesy, kind heartedness, and uprightness. The moral lessons which his noble father taught him were well read and practised all his life.

He died of fever, in relapse, Aug. 18, 1849, in Barton, Lowndes Co., Miss. There he was buried; and, during the winter following, his grave was marked by a suitable monument erected by his brother George.

TIMOTHY COPP.

Teacher; Augusta, Richmond Co., Ga.

Born,— Gilmanton, N. H., June 12, 1820.

Parents,— Josiah and Sarah (Morrill) Copp.

His preparatory studies were pursued at the academy in his native town.

Soon after graduating, he went to Augusta, Ga., and opened a school in Summerville, three miles from that city. There he continued until attacked by the disease which ended his days. He gave up his school only seven or eight days before his death and went into the city among friends, who did for him all that could be done. He died March 28, 1845. He was a man of excellent character, sedate, thoughtful, faithful to his trusts, promising to the future.

His body was interred in the cemetery of Augusta, lot No. 144, and a plain white marble stone, erected by friends from his native state, mark the place of his long repose.

WILLIAM DICKINSON.

Physician; Oculist; St. Louis, Mo.

Born,—Walpole, N. H., Sept. 22, 1824.

Parents,—Rev. Pliny Dickinson, D. C., 1798, pastor of Congregational Church in Walpole for 21 years, and Mary Brown (Bellows) Dickinson. Edward C., D. C., 1850, is a brother.

He was prepared for college at New Ipswich Academy, Rev. Charles Shedd, D. C., 1826, Principal.

After graduating, he attended a course of Medical Lectures in Boston, winter of 1843–4. In March, 1844, went to Spring Hill, Maury Co., Tenn., as Principal of Union Seminary, where he continued three years. After this, he taught in Aberdeen, Miss., two years; and in Jackson, Miss., about one year.

In 1850, he returned to New England; received the degree of M. D., from Harvard Medical College, in 1851; and commenced the practice of medicine in Taunton, Mass.

He sailed for Europe, October, 1858, and was absent nearly a year. Soon after his return, Oct., 1859, he went to St. Louis, where he practised his profession until Sept. 18, 1861. At this date, he entered the United States Service as Surgeon. He was, for eleven months, in charge of the General Hospital, Benton Barracks, St. Louis. April 4, 1862, he was commissioned Brigade Surgeon. After spending five months with the army, he was detailed to establish and conduct the United States Eye and Ear Infirmary in St. Louis. This being discontinued at the end of seven months, he was ordered to take charge of the United States General Hospital at Rolla, Mo. Here he continued until assigned to special duty in St. Louis, June 1, 1864.

Since the close of the war, he has resumed his medical practice, at 620 Locust St., St. Louis, making Diseases of the Eye his specialty.

He married, June 2, 1857, Evelina, daughter of Larra Crane, Boston, Mass.

CALEB ELLIS FARLEY.

Teacher; Seguin, Gaudaloupe Co., Texas.

Born,—Claremont, N. H., June 18, 1818.

Parents,—Rev. Stephen Farley, D. C., 1804, and Lucy (Saunders) Farley.

His preparatory studies were pursued at the academies in Atkinson, Hampton Falls, and Exeter, N. H. His college expenses were paid from money given by Hon. Caleb Ellis of Claremont, for whom he was named. He entered in our Sophomore spring.

Great pains have been taken to obtain information respecting Farley's life since graduating and the circumstances of his death; but with little success. His father was a man of talent and a ready writer; born in Hollis, N. H.; in Claremont, N. H., from 1806 to 1818, as pastor of the Congregational Church. Afterwards, he became a teacher, and taught in Claremont, Atkinson and elsewhere, for for several years, supplying pulpits on the sabbaths, when he was invited. His ten children were born in Claremont; and all, save one, it is supposed, have died, of pulmonary disease. Harriet N. Farley, sister of our classmate, was a lady of talent and energy. While an operative in the Lowell Mills, she started and edited, for some years, that unique monthly called the Lowell Offering or Factory Operatives' Magazine. She married John Donelery of Philadelphia, and has not been heard of by her N. E. friends, for many years. Rev. Mr. Farley resided, several years, in Amesbury, Mass., and died there, at the age of 72, Sept. 26, 1851.

After leaving college, Farley went to Texas, and taught school in several places in that state, — San Antonio, St. Marks Springs, near Austin, Corpus Christi, etc. He died at Seguin, Gaudaloupe Co., Texas, early in 1853, at the house of Mr. Mayo, with whom he boarded. This family spared no expense in the care of him during his sickness, and paid his funeral charges. His disease was consumption. He embraced the Roman Catholic faith, the religion of friends who were so kind to him in Texas.

His classmates will kindly remember Farley. He had genius and ambition. In his personal habits he was eccentric. His views of life were odd. His reading was large; his knowledge varied, but not well assorted. With a good memory and fine powers of acquisition and expression, he was versatile in knowledge, ready in debate, prolific with his pen. His goodness of heart will not be questioned. His restless and persistent activity will not be forgotten. We regret we do not know more of the thoughts and deeds of those last nine or ten years of his struggling life among strangers.

FRANCIS SKINNER FISKE.

Lawyer; Broker and Banker; Boston, Mass.

Born,—Keene, N. H., Nov. 9, 1825.

Parents,—Phineas and Isabella Brigham (Redington) Fiske.

Fiske was the youngest member of the Class.

He fitted for college in Groton, Mass., Rev. Horace Herrick, D. C., 1834, Principal.

After graduating, he read Law with William P. Wheeler, Esq., of Keene, and at the Dane Law School in Cambridge, Mass., where he graduated LL. B., in 1846.

He settled in the practice of his profession, Nov., 1847, in his native town, of which he continued a citizen until Dec., 1862, when he became a Broker and Banker in Boston,— Office, No. 40, State St. He was an Aid to Gov. Colby in 1847; and a Representative from Keene in the New Hampshire Legislature, 1857, 1858.

He has traveled much, and met with some adventures. In 1849–50, he was in Europe and Asia. He was taken prisoner by the Turks in 1850, and ordered to prison; but was liberated by the efforts of the Austrian Consul at Broosa. He was taking a trip around the world from May 20, 1852 to June 1, 1853, passing eight months on land in Central America, California, China, India, Egypt and Spain.

At the commencement of the war, in 1861, he was appointed Lieut. Colonel of the 2d Regiment, N. H. Volunteers. After the wounding of Col. Marston at the first battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, he was in command of his Regiment until Nov. 1861. He then served on Court Martial until April, 1862. He next commanded the 26th Pennsylvania Regiment until the battle of Williamsburg, May, 1862. Being disabled by sickness, he was compelled to resign in Nov., 1862.

He published, in 1859, a neat volume, which was pronounced by the New York Journal of Commerce as the best history of past speculations extant, entitled, The Mississippi Bubble, a Memoir of John Law, by Adolphe Theirs. To which are added, Authentic Accounts of the Darien Expeditions and the South Sea Scheme: translated and edited by Frank S. Fiske. New York, pp. 338.

He married, Dec. 14, 1858, Anna Farnsworth, daughter of Gen. James Wilson, of Keene, N. H.

JAMES FLETCHER.

Cong. Clergyman; Teacher; Danvers, Essex Co., Mass.

Born,— Acton, Mass., Sept. 5, 1823.

Parents,— Dea. John and Clarissa (Jones) Fletcher.

He pursued his preparatory studies at Leicester, Mass., under the instruction of Luther Wright, Esq., and at New Ipswich, N. H., under Rev. Charles Shedd, D. C., 1826. After graduating, he taught a Select School, in Acton, Mass., during the autumns of 1843 and 1844.

He pursued his theological studies in Andover Seminary, graduating in 1846. Was licensed by the Andover Association, April 7, 1846. He preached in Kingston, N. H., from Nov., 1846, to Feb., 1848, when he returned to Andover as Resident Licentiate. June 20, 1849, he was ordained and settled as pastor of the Third Congregational Church in Danvers, Mass. Here he remained fifteen years, until his dismission in June, 1864.

After remaining a few months at his father's, teaching a Select School in Acton, and preaching as opportunity occurred, in vacant pulpits, he returned to Danvers, as Principal of the Holten High School, in April, 1866.

In spring of 1863, he spent a few months as delegate of the U. S. Christian Commission. For fifteen successive years, he was a member of the School Committee of Danvers.

He married, in Andover, Mass., Oct. 10, 1849, Lydia Maria, daughter of Rev. Henry Woodward, D. C., 1815, Missionary to Ceylon, granddaughter of Prof. Bezaleel Woodward, of Dartmouth College, and adopted daughter of Hon. Samuel Fletcher, D. C., 1810, late of Concord, N. H.

CHILDREN.

THOMAS WILLIAM FREELON.

Attorney at Law; Trader; San Francisco, Cal.

Born,—Norwich, Vt., Aug. 6, 1823.

Parents,—Capt. Thomas W. Freelon, of the United States Navy, and Lydia P. (Emerson) Freelon.

He prepared for college at Meriden, N. H., under the tuition of C. S. Richards, LL. D.

Immediately after leaving college, he read law in Detroit, Mich., and, subsequently, in Niles, Mich., in which place he remained about three years, practising law and editing the Niles Inquirer.

At the breaking out of the war with Mexico in 1847, he was commissioned First Lieutenant in the 15th Regiment Mich. Vols., and entered the service; marched from Vera Cruz to Puebla and the city of Mexico, in Gen. Pillow's Division of the Army; was at the storming of Chepultepec, and entered the capital with the victorious army. Was promoted to a Captaincy and breveted for bravery at Chepultepec.

After his return from Mexico, he was Professor of English Literature and Modern Languages in Norwich University, in 1848–9. While connected with this institution about six months, he delivered several Lectures upon Mexico, which were well received.

In the spring of 1849, he joined a company bound for California. On reaching San Francisco, he engaged unsuccessfully in the mercantile business. He then resumed the practice of law. Was elected Judge of the County of San Francisco in 1854, and held the office one term of five years. His official course was much condemned by the "law and order" party; but he had strong friends. He visited New England in 1859. On his return to California, he again engaged in the practice of law.

He has, at times, engaged in mining and speculating, with varying success. He has not been heard from directly for several years. Supposed to be in San Francisco in either law or mercantile pursuits.

He was married, February, 1864, in Gold City, Nevada, to Louisa, daughter of Col. J. Newton Partridge, of Dayton, Ohio.

CHILDREN.

1. Daughter, born Feb. 1865; died 1865.

EDWARD FREEMAN.

Lawyer; Farmer; Plainfield, Sullivan Co., N. H.

Born,—Plainfield, N. H., June 3, 1823.

Parents,—Edward and Elizabeth (Duncan) Freeman.

Peyton Randolph Freeman, D. C., 1796, and Hon. Asa Freeman, D. C., 1810, are his uncles. Hon. Jonathan Freeman, his grandfather, was a member of the Committee of Safety, and filled many other important trusts in the revolutionary and subsequent history of the state.

His preparatory course for college was pursued at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H. He was admitted, upon examination, in the class of 1842; but first entered upon his college course with our class.

After leaving college, he read law with P. C. Freeman, Esq., of Claremont, N. H., and was admitted to the bar in Cheshire Co., N. H., Oct., 1846. He commenced practice in Marlow, N. H., but soon relinquished the law for the farm. He has held the office of County Commissioner for Sullivan Co., and several town offices.

He is now a much esteemed, well-to-do farmer, on the homestead in Plainfield, doing, also, some fire insurance business.

SAMUEL HUNTINGTON FREEMAN.

Physician; Albany, N. Y.

Born,—Hanover, N. H., August 24, 1821.

Parents,—Jonathan Freeman, Esq., a prominent citizen and, for several years, postmaster of Hanover, and Mary (Whitehouse) Freeman, a woman of rare excellence.

Francis A., D. C., 1841, and Edward, D. C., 1843, are his cousins.

He was fitted for college at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H.

Immediately after he graduated, he began the study of medicine under the tuition of Dr. Dixi Crosby, and attended a course of lectures at the Dartmouth Medical Institution.

The following summer, he became a student of his uncle, Dr. Samuel Freeman, D. C., 1813, a physician of eminence at Saratoga Springs, where he remained until winter, when he went to Albany, N. Y., and entered the office of Dr. J. H. Armsby, Professor in the Medical College, where he continued to pursue his professional studies, and graduated at the Albany Medical College, in 1846. Soon afterwards, he became associated with his former preceptor, Dr. Armsby, as partner in professional business, and so continued for twelve years. He has, since, been alone in practice.

He has been an active member of the Albany County Medical Society, and has contributed several monographs on various subjects of professional interest. He was twice elected President of this Society. His address on Human Longevity and Hygiene was published in the Transactions of the State Medical Society, to which he was elected a permanent member in 1862. He is a Curator of the Albany Medical College.

He married, May 20, 1851, Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of the Hon. Gideon Hawley, of Albany, N. Y.

DANIEL LITTLE FURBER.

Pastor of First Congregational Church; Newton Center, Middlesex Co., Mass.

Born,— Sandwich, N. H., Oct. 14, 1820.

Parents,— Jeremiah and Mrs. Eliza (Nichols) Little Furber.

His studies preparatory to entering college, were pursued in Sandwich, N. H., and at Fryeburg Academy, Me., and Portland, Me.

Being of such as handle the harp and organ, he was the leading musician of the class and President of the Handel Society, while in college; and organist of John St. Church in Lowell, Mass., while he was in the Theological Seminary.

He pursued his professional studies at Andover Theological Seminary, graduating in 1846, and remained there one year as Resident Licentiate.

He was ordained Dec. 1, 1847, and settled as pastor of the First Congregational Church in Newton Center, Mass., which place he still occupies. He was absent from his parish about sixteen months in 1848 and 1849, by reason of ill health. In 1865, he spent several weeks in the United States Army, in the service of the Christian Commission.

As pastor, he devotes himself faithfully and prudently to his work. As a preacher, he is clear, direct and instructive. Among his brethren, he is held in honor for piety, learning and good counsel.

He is a member of the Board of Publication of the Massachusetts Sabbath School Society; and joint author with Rev. Profs. A. Phelps and E. A. Park, of a treatise entitled Hymns and Choirs.

Sept. 13, 1850, he married, at South Danvers, Mass., Mrs. Maria (Brigham) Peabody, daughter of Lincoln Brigham, Esq., of Cambridge, Mass., sister of Hon. Lincoln F. Brigham, D. C., 1842, and widow of the late Rev. David Peabody, D. C., 1828, Professor of Rhetoric in Dartmouth College, 1838–9.

EZRA WHITE GALE.

Teacher; Insurance Agent; Kingston, Rockingham Co., N. H.

Born,—South Hampton, N. H., May 9, 1824.

Parents,—Ezra Bartlett Gale, M. D., and Ruth (White) Gale.

His parents moved to Kingston, N. H. In the academy there he began his preparatory studies, which were completed at Philips Exeter Academy, N. H.

After graduation, he had charge of the Barnard High School in South Hampton, N. H., three years; of a school at Salisbury Mills, Mass., one year; and of one in Ipswich, Mass., another year. Impaired health induced him to travel a year as Fire Insurance Agent, in New Hampshire and Vermont.

In 1850, he taught a public school in New London, Conn., and read law with J. R. Merriam, Esq. Subsequently, he taught as Principal of Derby Academy, Hingham, Mass., and of a Grammar School, Malden, Mass. He was, next, engaged in the book business in Providence,

R. I., for three years. Still later, he resided in Pittsburg, Pa., and, for four years, was a teacher in Erie, Pa. He is now said to be engaged in agencies, and residing in Kingston, N. H. In the winter of 1865, he entered the military service of the United States, and remained till he was discharged at the close of the war.

DANIEL WHEELWRIGHT GOOCH.

Counselor at Law; 18 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass.

Born,—Wells, Me., January 8, 1820.

Parents,—John and Olive (Winn) Gooch.

He fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered the Sophomore Class, August, 1840.

After graduation, he read law with Hon. Wm. A. Hayes at South Berwick, Me., and with Hon. Samuel Wells at Portland, Me.

He was admitted to the bar of Suffolk Co., Mass., in 1846, and commenced the practice of law in Boston. His residence, since his marriage, in 1848, has been in Melrose, Mass.

He represented the town of Melrose in the Massachusetts Legislature, in 1852. Was a member of the Massachusetts Convention called to revise the Constitution of the State, in 1853.

In January, 1858, he was elected Representative in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District of Massachusetts, and served through both sessions of the 35th Congress, with the exception of the first thirty days of the first session. He, also, represented the same District, by reelections, through the 36th, 37th, and the 38th Congresses. Was elected to the 39th Congress, but resigned in September, 1865. These five successive elections by the same intelligent constituency, tell best how he fulfilled his trusts. While in Congress, he was a member of the Committee on Territories, also, of Committee on Foreign Affairs and other important Committees.

In December, 1861, he was appointed Chairman, on the part of the House, of the Joint Special Committee on the Conduct of the War, and served on the same through the 37th and the 38th Congresses. He took an active and prominent part in the investigations and reports made by that Committee, and since published by order of Congress. His speeches in Congress and to the people at home always commanded attention for their good sense, political sagacity and elevated patriotism.

In August, 1865, he was appointed Naval Officer for the Port of Boston, and was removed in August, 1866, because he would not sanction the policy of President Johnson. He immediately resumed the practice of law in the city of Boston.

He married, Oct. 28, 1848, Hannah, daughter of Capt. John S. Pope, of Wells, Me.

CHILDREN.

1. Hannah Pope, born December, 1855; died Dec., 1855.
2. William Wallace, " Sept. 8, 1857.

JOSHUA JAMES GUPPEY.

Attorney at Law; Portage City, Columbia Co., Wis.

Born,—Dover, N. H., Aug. 27, 1820.

Parents,—John and Hannah (Dame) Guppey.

He pursued the studies preparatory to college in his native city, under the instruction of Revs. Newton E., D. C., 1834, and Burton O. Marble, D. C., 1838.

After leaving college, he studied law in Dover, with Winthrop A. Marston, Esq., and was admitted to the Strafford Co. Bar, April, 1846. In September, 1846, he settled in Columbus, Columbia Co., Wis., in the practice of law. Here he remained until 1851, when he removed to Portage City, in said county, which is still his home. He has a fine homestead of fifty acres on Silver Lake, and has accumulated a fair amount of property.

He has four times been elected Judge of the County Court of Columbia Co., terms of four years each, commencing, respectively, Jan. 1, 1850, 1854, 1866 and 1870. From April, 1858, to Sept. 1861, he was a very popular Superintendent of Schools for Portage City; was again elected to that office in 1866, and has held it, under annual elections, from that date till the present time. In 1862, he was a candidate for the 38th United States Congress, in the 2d Wisconsin Congressional District, and was defeated by only 2,000 votes, when his political opponents had a majority of 7,000.

Sept. 13, 1861, he was commissioned Lieut. Col. of the 10th Regiment Wisconsin Vols., and served under Gen. O. M. Mitchell, in all his campaigns of 1861 and 1862 in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama.

July 17, 1862, he was promoted to Colonel of the 23d Regiment Wisconsin Vols., and was with it, in actual command, in the first assault on Vicksburg, Dec., 1862, under Gen. Sherman; also, in the assault and capture of Post Arkansas, Jan. 11, 1863; and at the battles of Grand Gulf, Port Gibson, Champion Hills, and Black River Bridge. In all these battles, his Regiment behaved with marked bravery, and the official report of the capture of Post Arkansas states, that a part of the rebel right was "driven in by a charge of the 23d Wisconsin, Col. Guppey."

Col. Guppey was, also, in command of his regiment in the assault at Vicksburg in May, 1863, and in the siege operations resulting in the capture of that stronghold, July 4, 1863. After this capture, his regiment, with the 13th Army Corps to which it belonged, was transferred to the Department of the Gulf.

On Nov. 3, 1863, the 4th Division, in command of Gen. Burbridge, was attacked by an overwhelming force of rebels at Carion Crow or Bayou Borbeau, near Opelousas, La., and the battle of Grand Coteau was fought. In this battle, the 23rd Wisconsin, Col. Guppey, was held in reserve. When it came its turn to take the brunt of the battle, says the Cincinnati Commercial, "this excellent regiment, animated by its brave Colonel, held the enemy in check for a short time, delivering its fire with deadly effect. * * * Here Col. G., was wounded (just below the knee of the left leg), and subsequently taken prisoner. The man who shot him was not thirty feet from him at the time. But the 23d, too, had to give way. The odds were too great for human effort to overcome. * * * The Colonel commanded his men for some time after he was shot." Mr. Greeley, in his American Conflict, when describing this battle, says: "Our right, thus suddenly assailed in great force and with intense fury, was broken, and was saved from utter destruction by the devoted bravery of the 23d Wisconsin and the efficient service of Nims battery." Col. G., was treated kindly while a prisoner, and was exchanged in Jan., 1864. He was, soon after, detailed by Gen. Banks as President of a Military Commission for the examination of officers in the 13th Army Corps.

In the summer of 1864, Col. Guppey was assigned to the command of a brigade, and was in active service till the close of the war, all the way from Mobile Bay, Ala., to Paducah, Ky.; and was Post Commander at the latter place when the war ended. On the 15th of June, 1865, Col. Guppey was commissioned Brigadier General of Volunteers by brevet, for gallant and meritorious services during the war. His regiment was mustered out of service July 4, 1865, and had an enthusiastic reception on reaching Madison, Wis., July 16th.

Gen. Guppey's military record is a clean one, and such as his classmates, who remember him in college as Captain of the Dartmouth Phalanx, would expect him to make. He has returned to his home, and is discharging his duties as County Judge of Columbia County, and School Superintendent of the city of Portage. His last election to both of these offices took place on the 6th of April, 1869, and was without opposition.

JOHN COTTON HASKELL.

Teacher; Ashby, Middlesex Co., Mass.

Born,— Leominster, Mass., Aug. 24, 1823.

Parents,— Abraham Haskell, M. D., graduate of Harvard, and Hannah (Cotton) Haskell, of Plymouth, Mass.

On his mother's side, he was descended from Rev. John Cotton, the first minister of Boston, in honor of whom he was named. His father resided and practised medicine in Ashby after 1815, with the exception of a few years in Leominster.

His preparatory course for college was pursued chiefly under the tuition of his father.

He spent the autumn of 1843, teaching a Select School in Littleton, Mass. Immediately upon the close of his school, he accompanied his brother, Dr. Abraham S. Haskell, to Hillsborough, Montgomery Co., Ill., where he taught from Dec., 1843 to April, 1845. The climate of that state did not agree with him. It developed an inherent disease which had long been hidden. In May, 1845, after a wearisome journey by land and lake, he reached his father's residence in Ashby, extremely debilitated. With diseased spine, painful abscesses, and tuberculous lungs, his physical sufferings were very severe, confining him, for nearly ten months, to care and medicine and an invalid's room. He died, March 30, 1846, and was buried in Ashby.

In college, Haskell ranked among the best scholars. He acquired readily and was always prepared at recitation. His mind was clear, ready, vigorous and well balanced. His character was noble. In it were blended steadfast adherence to truth, generosity, charity, unbending uprightness and obliging courtesy. So young, so hopeful, and so promising, as he was, it is interesting to know how he bore his last trial. In a letter to the Secretary, dated three months before his death, he says, "Thank God, the thought of death does not inspire me with the terror it once did. There is, to be sure, a shrinking back of the soul, a dread of taking the final step which can never be retraced. But still, I think I can say, I fear not to die. God be praised that he has not called me before I was able so to feel." Again he says, referring to his agonizing pains, "Yet I enjoy a good deal." And again, speaking of the solicitude so common to educated young men, to be well settled in life's business: "But I shall soon be settled where there shall be no solicitude." A few weeks before his decease, he openly professed his faith in the Saviour, surrounded by a group of friends assembled in his sick room. "Sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust," he approached his grave as one lies down to pleasant dreams. It was a blessed sleep.

That man lives greatly,
Whate'er his fate or fame, who greatly dies.

GEORGE BENJAMIN HEMMENWAY.

Teacher; Goodalls, Hanover Co., Va.

Born,— Lancaster, N. H., April 5, 1822.

Parents,— Solomon and Clarissa (Willard) Hemmenway. Joel Willard Hemmenway, D. C., 1842, is an elder brother.

His studies preparatory to admission to college were pursued at Newbury Seminary, Vt.

His rank among his classmates, for scholarship and general intelligence, was very respectable. While he was at college, his progress was embarrassed by feeble health.

During his senior year, was absent much on this account. Consumption succeeded a severe typhoid fever. He went South in the autumn of 1842, in the hope of checking this disease. There he engaged in teaching until the next spring, when he returned to his class. His state of health still forbade study. The summer and part of the autumn of 1843, were spent at his home and elsewhere in trying to regain health. He was a man of large hopes; eager for the race of life; ambitious to outrun. It was very hard for him to give up and believe that he must die. He clung to life; he struggled hard to battle the destroyer.

Late in the fall of 1843, he returned to Hanover Co., Va., and attempted to teach again. But his strength rapidly failed, and he died at the house of Mr. Sneed, at Goodalls, Hanover Co., Va., Feb. 24, 1844. B. F. Whidden, D. C., 1840, was with him at the time of his death.

He was buried near the ground on which was since fought the battle of Hanover Court House. No stone marked the spot. It is now, no doubt, leveled by the tread of two armies. "Life's fitful fever" no more!

EDWIN RUTHVEN HODGMAN.

Cong. Clergyman; Westford, Middlesex Co., Mass.

Born,— Camden, Me., Oct. 21, 1819.

Parents,— Buckley and Betsey (Pratt) Hodgman.

JOHN EDWARD BULLARD JEWETT.

Cong. Clergyman; Teacher; Pepperell, Middlesex Co., Mass.

Born,—Pepperell, Mass., Dec. 9, 1821.

Parents,—Dea. Henry and Rebecca (Blood) Jewett.

His preparation for college was made at Pepperell Academy, under the instruction of Rev. E. D. Eldridge and Rev. Geo. Cooke, D. C., 1832.

After graduating, he taught a Select School in the autumn of 1843, in Royalston, Mass.; afterwards, he taught in the Academies in Wakefield and East Jaffrey, N. H., and in Pepperell, Falmouth, and Abington, Mass., two or three terms each. He was, six months, Principal of Rankin Institute, Deckertown, N. J.

He spent three years at Andover Theological Seminary, graduating in 1849.

Sept. 25, 1850, he was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in East Jaffrey, N. H., having begun to preach there in the January previous. Was dismissed from his pastorate in 1852, but continued to reside in E. Jaffrey until Oct. 1859, engaging in agriculture, and preaching frequently on the sabbath. His health has forbidden constant preaching or parish charge. In 1859, he removed to Pepperell, Mass.

He has frequently employed his pen in writing for the Congregationalist and other periodicals. He has written many poems, some of which he has read with acceptance to the public, and some he has published.

He has held the offices of School Committee and Town Treasurer in Jaffrey, and Town Assessor and School Superintendent in Pepperell.

In the spring of 1867, he became Principal of Pepperell High School; in 1868, of Shrewsbury High School.

He married, Jan. 10, 1851, Sophronia, daughter of Maj. Supply Wilson, of New Ipswich, N. H. She died July 23, 1852.

EDWARD ADDISON LAWRENCE.

Teacher; Book Publisher; New York, N. Y.

Born,— Groton, Mass., Feb. 25, 1823.

Parents,—Dea. Curtis Lawrence, a veteran schoolmaster, who, for nearly thirty winters, pursued this vocation, and Lucy (Merriam) Lawrence, of Mason, N. H.

His sister, Lucy Maria, a graduate of Rutgers Female Institute, New York City, married Rev. William Wood, D. C., 1842, missionary at Satara, India.

He prepared for college in Groton Academy, under the tuition of Rev. Horace Herrick, D. C., 1834.

During the first year after leaving Dartmouth, he filled temporary engagements in teaching; and, in the autumn of 1844, became Principal of the Academy in New Ipswich, N. H., where he remained till 1851. In these years he also aided, as Teacher and Lecturer, in the conduct of successive sessions of the County Teachers' Institute. Subsequently, he was in charge of the Graded and High Schools in Naugatuck, Ct., and in Stamford, Ct., till the winter of 1854-5, when, from prostration of health, he resigned the latter position. In the spring of 1856, he took charge of the Luzerne Institute, Wyoming, Penn. In Jan., 1859, he became Principal of the High School in Scranton, Penn., and Superintendent of the Schools of that borough. He was intimately associated with the educational progress of Luzerne County, during the years of his residence in Pennsylvania.

In August, 1862, he became Principal of a Grammar School in Brooklyn, N. Y. This position he resigned in the summer of 1865, to open, in the same city, a private school — The Academic and Collegiate School for Boys,— which was a marked success till he left it in the following spring, from declining health.

Soon afterwards, he became connected with a Book Publishing House in New York City, No. 4 Bond Street, of which he is a member and a director, continuing to reside in Brooklyn till April, 1869, when he changed his residence to Orange, N. J.

As Sabbath School Teacher and Superintendent, he has done much service. As an educator, his standard has been high, his devotion constant, his influence wide and excellent. He has been accustomed to give lectures before Lyceums and Educational Associations, and has frequently furnished for the press articles on educational topics. He was associate editor of the Connecticut Common School Journal, in 1854.

July 26, 1850, he married Joanna Pond, daughter of Stephen Thayer, Esq., of New Ipswich, N. H.

DANIEL LITTLEFIELD.

Teacher; New Castle, Westchester Co., N. Y.

Born,—Grantham, N. H., Aug. 21, 1815.

Parents,—Dea. Seth, of Croydon, N. H., and Sarah (Crane) Littlefield.

His preparatory studies were pursued at Meriden, N. H.

After graduating, he taught two years in East Bridgewater, Mass. From Jan., 1845 to April, 1856, he kept a Private School for Boys and Girls in New York City, at 192 East Broadway.

In the spring of 1856, he became one of the Principals of Mount Kisco Educational Institute, a Boarding School for Boys at New Castle, Westchester Co., N. Y., about forty miles from New York City.

The buildings for this school were erected under his own supervision; and to this work he devoted all his pecuniary resources and all the leisure he could command for more than two years.

He died at Mount Kisco, soon after the completion of his plans, Sept. 9, 1856, after an illness of only one week, of congestion of the liver. He was buried in Grantham, N. H.

Littlefield will be remembered by his classmates as a man of business industry and tact; dignified and courteous manners; and strictly correct moral habits. We have rea- to believe that he was an apt teacher, and a successful disciplinarian; and that he led a useful life as an educator and a Christian.

He was a member of the Broome St. Presbyterian Church, New York City, and was ordained one of its Elders, January, 1854.

He married Abigail, daughter of Joseph E. Reed, of East Bridgewater, Mass., Jan. 26, 1845.

His widow and children reside in Boston, Mass.

AMASA CONVERSE LORD.

Cong. Clergyman; Farmer; Somonauk, De Kalb Co., Ill.

Born,—Norwich, Vt., Dec. 4, 1816.

Parents,—Asa and Ruth (Howe) Lord.

He fitted for college at Thetford Academy, Vt. Entered Lane Theological Seminary, Walnut Hills, Ohio, in the autumn of 1843, and graduated June 10, 1846. Began, same month, to preach as missionary of the American Home Missionary Society, in Colé Co., Ill., and continued there during the summer. Oct. 1, went to Troy Grove, Ill., and preached one year. Health failing, he spent ten months recruiting in Vermont.

Returning, he preached in Sharon, Whiteside Co., Ill., from Oct. 1, 1848 to May 1, 1850; then, one year at Freedom, La Salle Co., Ill.; and two and a half years at Victor, De Kalb Co., Ill.

Feeble health compelling him to relinquish the stated ministry, he bought a large prairie farm in 1851, in Somonauk, where he now resides, sixty miles south-west from Chicago, on the Burlington and Quincy Rail Road. He has successfully cultivated his farm, and is enjoying health and prosperity.

Nov. 8, 1848, he married Sarah Leonard, daughter of Rev. Nahum Gould, a pioneer Western Missionary, from Warwick, Mass.

SAMUEL AUGUSTUS LORD.

Physician; South Danvers (now Peabody), Essex Co., Mass.

Born,— Amherst, N. H., Feb. 13, 1822.

Parents,— Rev. President Nathan and Elizabeth King (Leland) Lord.

John King, D. C., 1836; Joseph Leland, D. C., 1839; Frederick R., D. C., 1842; William H., and Henry C., D. C., 1843; Nathan, D. C., 1851; and Francis B., D. C., 1856, are his brothers.

He pursued his preparatory studies in Hanover, N. H. After his graduation, he studied medicine with the Dartmouth Medical Faculty, and received his degree of M. D. from Dartmouth Medical College, in 1847.

He settled as a physician in South Danvers, Mass., where he continued until his death. He was a member of the School Committee of Danvers, seven years; and a Justice of the Peace, ten years.

He died suddenly, of congestion, in South Danvers, Oct. 29, 1862, and was buried, Oct. 31st, in Harmony Grove Cemetery.

In college, he was correct in his habits; interested, active and prudent in our class affairs; enjoying the good-will of his classmates. He was naturally all that is good and noble as a man; and had acquired much skill in his profession. The latter part of his life was one of much physical suffering; its close not only sudden but sad and deeply lamented.

He married, Nov. 2, 1854, Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of Hon. Robert S. Daniels, of South Danvers, Mass.

CHILDREN.

WILLIAM HAYES LORD.

Pastor of 1st Congregational Church; Montpelier, Vt.

Born,— Amherst, N. H., March 11, 1824.

Parents,— Rev. Nathan Lord, D.D., late president of Dartmouth College, and Elizabeth King (Leland) Lord.

His preparation for college was at Moor's Charity School, Hanover, N. H., Clark S. Brown, D. C., 1838, Principal.

In the autumn of 1843, he commenced the study of theology at Andover, and graduated in 1846. He was licensed to preach by the Andover Association, April 7, 1846. Began to preach to the Congregational Church in Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 1, 1847, and was ordained its pastor, Sept. 20, 1847. Here he has had an active and useful ministry of twenty-two years, and here he still devotedly pursues his work. He is a close thinker, an able writer, and ranks among our foremost ministers.

In 1853, he gave the annual oration before the United Literary Societies of Vermont University at Burlington; and, in 1857, the oration before the Phi Beta Kappa Society of Dartmouth.

He was Moderator of the Vermont General Convention of Congregational Ministers and Churches in 1861; has been a Director of the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society and of the Vermont Education Society; and Secretary of the Vermont Bible Society.

He is a member of the Vermont Historical Society, and one of its Vice Presidents and Curators.

In the military line, besides his services as a good soldier in the church militant, he has been Chaplain of 2d Vermont Volunteer Regiment.

The degree of D.D. was conferred by his Alma Mater in 1867.

On account of impaired health, he made a trip, of about six months, to Europe, from Feb. to Sept., 1868, his people continuing his salary, supplying his pulpit, and paying $1,000 to defray his expenses of travel. A new church, one of the finest in New England, has recently been erected and occupied by his society, called the Bethany church.

He has published many sermons, addresses and papers, among which are these:

Sermons, etc.—1. Funeral of Hon. Samuel Prentiss; 2. Funeral of Mrs. Lucretia Prentiss; 3. Funeral of Hon. E. P. Walton; 4. Funeral of Hon. F. F. Merrill; 5. Funeral of Rev. James Hobart; 6. *Funeral of Hon. HENRY CLARK LORD.

Attorney at Law; Rail Road Superintendent; Cincinnati, Ohio.

Born,—Amherst, N. H., Oct. 2, 1825.

Parents,—Rev. Nathan Lord, D. D., LL. D., graduated Bowdoin, 1809, formerly pastor of Congregational Church in Amherst, N. H., and President of Dartmouth College from 1828 to 1863, and Elizabeth King (Leland) Lord.

He was prepared for college at Moor's School, Hanover, N. H.

After graduating, he read law one year with Hon. Daniel Blaisdell, D. C., 1827, of Hanover, N. H.; continued reading law and teaching in East Virginia two years. Soon after returning from Virginia, about 1847, he commenced the practice of law as partner with his brother, Joseph Leland Lord, D. C., 1839, in Boston, and continued until he went to Cincinnati in 1852. Here he practised law until 1856.

In 1856, he took charge of the line of Rail Roads between Cincinnati and Indianapolis, and has, ever since, devoted himself, with energy, skill and success, to enterprises of this kind. Favored of fortune in his pecuniary investments, he has become, it is supposed, the wealthiest member of the class. He has a splendid estate near the city, where he finds his chief recreation in the cultivation of an extensive vineyard, and where his friends are ever hospitably entertained. He enjoys the use of his wealth himself, and the sharing of it with others.

He has a residence by the sea-side in York, Me., where the members of the family usually spend a portion of the summer.

He has been, for many years, President of the Cincinnati and Indianapolis Rail Road; is also President of several other connecting roads.

He married, June 24, 1852, Eliza Burnet, daughter of Hon. Nathaniel Wright, LL. D., D. C., 1811, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and sister of Rev. William B. Wright, of Berkeley St. Congregational Church, Boston.

CHILDREN.

AMOS D. LUFKIN.

Teacher; Inventor; Cleveland, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio.

Born,—Chester (now Auburn), N. H., Sept. 1, 1813.

Parents,—Nehemiah and Rachel (Currier) Lufkin.

His preparatory course was pursued at Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H., under that venerated teacher, Abel F. Hildreth, Esq. He taught awhile after leaving college, in Scituate, Mass. He went to Cleveland, O., in the fall of 1844, and engaged in teaching, first the Rockwell St. Public School, and afterwards the Cottage Private School, until July, 1853, when he was compelled to relinquish his school, by reason of poor health.

He then purchased an interest in some iron works in Buffalo, N. Y.; became owner of the whole, in July, 1856; sold one half in Oct., 1856, for $22,500. Lost all in the financial crash of 1857. Since then, he has been engaged successfully in Lead, Leather, and Oil business. He has made valuable improvements in the process of obtaining carbonate of lead, and has patented a process of preparing hides and skins to be tanned, which is highly commended by tanners and leather dealers, for its economy and safety, and for increasing the softness, finish and durability of the leather. He is now hopefully experimenting with benzine.

He was married, in Cleveland, O., Nov. 26, 1846, to Clara Dwight, a native of Amherst, Mass., and daughter of Daniel H. Lamb, Esq.

CHILDREN.

1. Clara Louise, born April, 16, 1848.

JEREMIAH MARSTON.

Attorney at Law; Hannibal, Marion Co., Mo.

Born,—Orford, N. H., Nov. 13, 1819.

Parents,— Capt. Jeremiah and Theda (Sawyer) Marston, niece of Rev. John Sawyer, D.D., who died in Bangor, Maine, aged 102 years.

Gen. Gilman Marston, D. C., 1837, Attorney at Law in Exeter, N. H., and late Representative in Congress from New Hampshire, is a brother.

He prepared for college at Meriden, N. H. After leaving Dartmouth, he taught two years in Pleasant Grove, Maury Co., Tenn. From thence he went to Carrollton, Ala., where, besides teaching, he edited the Pickens County Republican, and read law. His editorial life extended over four years from June, 1845. He was admitted to the bar at Tuscaloosa, Ala., in 1846, and began to practise in partnership with Jonathan Bliss, Esq., D. C., 1824, in Carrollton, Ala. He removed from Carrollton to LaGrange, Mo., in the summer of 1858, and from La Grange to Hannibal, Mo., where he now resides, esteemed in his profession, prosperous in business.

He has given many political and educational addresses with acceptance. Has held the office of Mayor of Carrollton, Ala., and was Bank Attorney for the Union Bank of Missouri, during his residence in La Grange.

He married in Carrollton, Ala., June 14, 1857, Sarah Ann, daughter of John M. Kerr, Esq., of Sumter Co., Ala.

CHILDREN.

1. Sue Cole, born June 10, 1861.
2. Frank Kerr, " Oct. 28, 1862.
3. Charles Gilman, " Dec. 6, 1864; died Sept. 8, 1867.

DANA MILLER.

Teacher; Agent; Government Clerk; Washington, D. C.

Born,— Dummerston, Vt., April 16, 1818.

Parents,— William and Esther (Knight) Miller.

His ante-collegiate studies were in Townsend, West Brattleborough and Dummerston, Vt. From a very poor fitting, by close application he soon stood in the front ranks of his class as a scholar. After receiving his degree, he remained at home until the following December, when he went to Washington, D. C., and was soon invited, by Rev. Mr. Bulfinch, to take charge of the Classical Department of his school, which he did for two years.

From the summer of 1846 to 1850, he traveled for increase of knowledge in the West and South-West, taking agencies to pay expenses.

In the spring of 1850, he returned to Washington, D.C., and was employed as Clerk in the Land Office. He soon received an appointment in the Census Bureau, and held this place until his death. At this time, he held a more desirable appointment to the Treasury Department.

He died in Washington, Nov. 23, 1851, of nervous typhoid fever.

In the Daily National Intelligencer, printed at Washington, Monday, Nov. 24, 1851, appeared the following notice: "Died, on the 23d inst., after a short illness, Mr. Dana Miller, of Dummerston, Vt., at the time of his death and for the last thirteen months, a Clerk in the Census Office. He was much respected by those who knew him for intelligence and gentlemanly deportment."

The same honorable testimony is given to his character wherever he was known. His classmates will remember his manly bearing, his self-discipline, his rapid mental growth, his frank and candid friendship, his unsullied life. All that was mortal of him now lies buried in Dummerston, his native town, near his father's house.

"To live in hearts we leave behind,
Is not to die."

ROBERT THOMAS MURDOUGH.

Teacher; Acworth, Sullivan Co., N. H.

Born,—Deering, N. H., Nov. 5, 1817.

Parents,—Thomas and Catharine (McPherson) Murdough.

He entered the class in 1840.

He taught in Acworth in the winter of his senior year. His naturally frail constitution, worn by care and labor in the school-room, became an easy prey to disease. A sudden cold induced a severe fever with complications, which, after four weeks, terminating in congestion, ended his mortal life, March 29, 1843. He died at his father's house in Acworth, and was buried in Acworth Center. On his tomb-stone, we are told that he left "in the midst of cherished hopes and ardent desires to labor as a servant of the Lord in the gospel ministry."

Murdough was highly esteemed. At the time of his decease he was president of the Theological Society. His consistent Christian character was marked. It was seen in his pleasant face, his cheerful temper, his open heart, his kind tones of voice, his high sense of honor, his unselfish regard for the happiness of his friends, his clear convictions of duty, his firm purpose, his cultivated conscience, his purity of thought as read in all his words and acts. His memory is affectionately cherished as his loss was deeply mourned, by his classmates.

"Just beyond the shores of time,
The better life begins."

CHARLES NEWHALL.

Pastor of Elm St. Baptist Church; Exeter, Rockingham Co., N. H.

Born,— Medford, Mass., Aug. 12, 1815.

Parents,— Samuel and Lucretia (Tufts) Newhall.

Both his parents died before he was five years old, and he was left in the care of Nathan Adams, Esq., a neighboring farmer.

At New Hampton, N. H., he pursued, at intervals, his preparatory studies. After graduating, he studied theology in the Baptist Theological Institution at Newton Center, Mass., and graduated in 1846. At the close of his professional studies, his health forbade preaching. For nearly two years, the most that he was able to do was to teach a district school for two sessions.

In April, 1848, he commenced preaching in Sutton, N. H., once a sabbath, once a month. His health improving so that he could perform the ordinary labors of the ministry, he was ordained at Sutton, June 12, 1850; was dismissed in 1852. He was pastor of the Baptist church in Hanover, N. H., from March 1, 1852 until May, 1855. His next ministerial service was in Stratham, N. H., from Aug. 12, 1855 to April 1, 1859. From Stratham he removed to Sanbornton Bay, N. H., where he preached from Aug. 1, 1859 to March 1, 1861. From thence he went to Exeter, N. H., June 1, 1861, as pastor of the Elm street Baptist Church. His record is that of a faithful minister, doing all the good he can.

He married, Oct. 7, 1846, Sarah Harris, daughter of Edward Chapman, of Rumney, N. H.

CHILDREN.

1. Sarah Emily, born Jan. 27, 1851; died Sept. 25, 1851.

EZRA NEWTON.

Teacher; Cong. Clergyman; Preston, Fillmore Co., Minnesota.

Born,— Princeton, Mass., September 30, 1818.

Parents,— Ezra and Lucy (Howe) Newton.

He was prepared for college at the academies in Westminster, Princeton and Monson, Mass.

Soon after graduating, he took charge of Moore's Charity School, Hanover, N. H., until May, 1844. He then taught one year in Medford, N. J. While there he began a course of reading in theology. After leaving, he studied divinity with Rev. Sewall Harding of E. Medway, Mass.

His license to preach was given by Mendon Association, Mass., April 15, 1846. While his main work has been that of the ministry, ill health has frequently obliged him, for a time, to teach and to engage in agencies and other business. He was settled in Shutesbury, Mass., from March 1, 1848 until Oct. 1, 1850. Before this, he had received an injury which resulted in a severe neuralgic affection and constrained him to suspend preaching. He taught in East Medway, Mass., winter of 1850–51; was feeble during the years of 1851–52; but spent the summers as agent of the New Hampshire Bible Society. Taught in South Hampton, N. H., 1852–3; and preached in Dighton, Mass., from May, 1853 to Aug. 1855. He went to the West in autumn of 1855, sojourning a few sabbaths in Quincy, Ill. He has since preached in Home Missionary fields —in Belle Prairie, Morrison Co., Minn., one year; at that place and Little Falls, from Nov., 1856 to Oct., 1860; in High Forest, Minn., a year. He went to Preston, Fillmore Co., Minn., February 1, 1862, where he now resides, and was employed one year in teaching. He began to preach there,

January 1, 1863. In April, 1865, he left preaching and took an agency; then kept a drug store. In 1867, he taught at Spring Valley, Minn., and is now teaching in Preston.

He has presided at town meetings and county political conventions. He has ever been a diligent and devoted worker for truth.

He married, in Kingston, N. H., Aug. 20, 1846, Martha Thayer, daughter of Aaron Patten, and sister of classmate Patten.

HENRY SWAIN PARKER.

Teacher; Farmer; Shopiere, Rock Co., Wis.

Born,—Southborough, Mass., April 20, 1820.

Parents,— Gabriel and —— (Fay) Parker.

He was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., under S. H. Taylor, LL.D., D.C., 1832.

He assisted Caleb Emery, D. C., 1842, at Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H., in 1846–47. Spent one or more years in 1847–8, in the Andover Theological Seminary, but did not complete this course. He taught, also, in the Academy in Wayland, Mass., and the High School in Greenville, Ct., before he went to Thompson, Ct.

He was a resident of Thompson, Conn., from 1851 to 1864, where he successfully taught a Family and Day School for boys until 1862. Suffering much from ill health, he gave up his school, and, by advice of friends, in the summer of 1864, removed to Shopiere, Wis., where he is now residing engaged in farming.

He married, April 19, 1847, Harriet E., daughter of Rev. Alanson Rawson, of Southboro, Mass. She died July 4, 1855.

He married Aug. 13, 1857, Anna M., daughter of Thomas Thatcher, of Thompson, Conn.

CHILDREN.

JOHN HENRY PARNELL.

Machinist; Sacramento City, Cal.

Born,— Salem, Mass., Oct. 19, 1824.

Parents,— John and Sarah (Bray) Parnell.

His parents lived in Andover, Mass.

After graduating he went on a voyage to the East Indies as common sailor before the mast. Soon after he came back, he learned the trade of a machinist, in Lowell, Mass. In April, 1849, he joined the "Pacific Company," and sailed in the ship York, for California.

He has been engaged in his business as a machinist and in mining, residing most of the time in or near Sacramento ever since he reached that state. In March, 1864, he was Assistant Clerk in the office of the County Clerk at Sacramento.

WILLIAM AARON PATTEN.

Cong. Clergyman; Kingston, Rockingham Co., N. H.

Born,—Kingston, N. H., June 28, 1816.

Parents,—Aaron and Sarah (Chase) Patten. Of six sisters, Louisa married Rev. W. P. Gale, of Stellapolis, Iowa; Sarah A. married classmate Abel Wood, of Albany Academy, N. Y.; Martha T. married classmate Ezra Newton, of Preston, Minn.

He early learned the trade of printer in Newburyport, Mass., and Concord, N. H.; and, while in college, was, for two years, printer of The Dartmouth.

His preparation for college was made in Gilmanton Academy, Rev. Charles Tenney, D. C., 1835, Principal.

After graduating, he taught a school in Weare, N. H., in the autumn of 1843; afterward, in Gilbertsville, N. Y., assisting classmate A. Wood.

He entered Andover Theological Seminary, Dec., 1843, and graduated Sept. 2, 1846. After leaving the Seminary, he preached a year or two in Hinsdale, N. H., and about the same time in Chesterfield, N. H. He was ordained in Deerfield, N. H., July 18, 1850, and was there as pastor of the Congregational Church three and a half years. He went to York, Me., in 1854, and preached nearly four years. He also preached in Maquoketa, Ia. On account of failing health, he went to California in 1859. While there he preached in Grass Valley and in San Francisco.

He returned to New England in 1861. In May, 1864, he was appointed Chaplain of the 32d Regiment of Maine Volunteers, and served in the army of the Potomac. Since Oct., 1865 until recently, he has preached under appointment from the American Home Missionary Society, in Williamsburg, Iowa.

He was a member of the School Committee in Hinsdale, Deerfield, York, and Grass Valley. He is now in his native town on account of impaired health. As a preacher he is bold, earnest, and effective.

DANIEL CHESLEY PINKHAM.

Lawyer; County Clerk; Lancaster, Coos Co., N. H.

Born,—Jackson, N. H., March 29, 1820.

Parents,—Daniel and Esther (Chesley) Pinkham.

Preparatory course for college pursued at Lancaster Academy, N. H.

After leaving college, he took charge of Conway Academy, N. H., until March, 1844; then Lancaster Academy, N. H., until June, 1845; went, soon after, to Beliot, Wis., where he taught the Academy in the winter of 1845 – 6, and a select school for one year after. While in Lancaster Academy, he read law with Hon. Jared Williams. He was admitted to the bar in Jefferson Co., Wis., in 1847, and practiced two years in Jefferson.

He was Clerk of the Circuit Court of Jefferson Co., Wis., in 1848. In 1849, he went to California. While there, was County Surveyor and Civil Engineer in El Dorado Co., from 1851 to 1853. Returned to Lancaster, N. H., Oct., 1853; had no permanent business until 1856. Then he was appointed Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas and of the Supreme Judicial Court for Coos County, which office he held till June, 1868. He edited the Coos Republican from Oct., 1862 to Aug., 1863. Now practices law.

He married, June 20, 1864, Emily, daughter of William R. Stockwell, of Lancaster, N. H.

CHILDREN.

2. Martha Evans, " Feb. 9, 1867.

JOHN NEWTON PUTNAM.

Cong. Clergyman; Professor of Greek Language and Literature at Dartmouth College; Hanover, Grafton Co., N. H.

Born,—Andover, Mass., Dec. 26, 1822.

Parents,—Simeon Putnam, M. A., Harvard, 1811, Principal of a Classical School, North Andover, Mass., and Abigail Brigham (Fay) Putnam, sister of Judge Fay of Cambridge, Mass. Rev. Charles S. Putnam, Rector of an Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., who died in Jan., 1860, is an elder brother.

Putnam was, from a child, a student under the choicest teachers. His early studies were pursued with his father, who died in 1833. His preparatory course for college was begun under that model teacher, Osgood Johnson, D. C., 1828, at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and finished in private study with Rev. Thatcher Thayer, D. D., now of Newport, R. I., then of Dennis, Mass. With him he had four years of careful tuition, choice reading, and the kindly influences of a refined Christian home. He entered the Sophomore class in the fall of 1840, with unusual culture and fitness. All the way through his college course, he was blessed with the solicitous care of one of our most judicious and scholarly professors, in addition to the advantages common to us all.

He, at once, took the first rank in his class as a scholar; and, without seeming self-assertion or laborious effort, maintained it to the end. It is said that he is one of the very few on our college records, who never failed to have a perfect mark at recitation. He held his place so modestly and so gracefully, as well as so surely, that envy and detraction never tried their venom upon him. If they had, it would have been harmless.

After graduation, he was occupied one year, in 1843–4, teaching in Newport, R. I.; one year, in 1844–5, as student in Andover Theological Seminary; two years, in 1845–7, as instructor in Leicester Academy, Mass.; two years, in 1847–9, in finishing his theological course at Andover, where he graduated in 1849.

While yet studying theology, he was tutor of Greek at Dartmouth from February to July, 1849. In this latter month, he was elected Professor of Greek Language and Literature, to succeed our own scholarly and accomplished Prof. Alpheus Crosby. This post, for the fourteen remaining years of his earthly labor, he honored by his manhood, adorned by his learning, and graced by his beautiful life. His popularity with the students from the beginning, was very remarkable. Dignified without ostentation, familiar without self-depreciation, almost matchless as a teacher, he entirely won the confidence, respect, and love of his classes. Who ever heard of an insult offered to him, or a harsh word spoken of him?

He was ordained as an evangelist at Woodstock, Vt., Oct. 6, 1852. His pulpit efforts were few; but always finished, devout, and acceptable. He was invited to several important pastorates; but ever felt it duty to decline them. The Theological Seminaries at Andover and Chicago desired him to fill professorships, but he did not accept them.

Failing health in 1862–3, awakened solicitude in the minds of his friends. Their advice induced him to undertake a voyage across the sea, with the hope of recruiting his strength and gratifying a scholar's desire to look upon the consecrated places of the old world. He left New York, accompanied by his wife, May 23, 1863, and landed at Queenstown, June 2d. The first weeks of his trip seemed promising to its purpose. The new scenes inspired him; his health seemed to improve. He made rapid but appreciative visits to many an interesting, well selected spot in Ireland, Scotland and England; crossed the channel in the latter part of July; visited Paris; and proceeded to the Rhine through Belgium, on his way to Switzerland, hoping in due time to enjoy, as he would have enjoyed with all his fine culture and lively sensibilities, the classic art works, and the venerated fields and hills of Italy and Greece. On the night of Aug. 15th, in the town of Bonn, a sudden hemorrhage from the lungs prostrated his strength and arrested his progress. He remained here till the latter part of September, to recover strength for his homeward journey. He could go no farther onward.

A weak invalid and in care of an invalid wife, he returned by the most direct routes,— by rail across England and by steamer across the Atlantic. He left Liverpool, Oct. 3d. An accident to the steamer Africa, in which he took passage, occurred near Cape Race, delayed the arrival, and probably shortened his life.

Weary and worn by the attacks of consumption upon a delicate physical organization, he gently breathed out his life on the deck of the little steamer Alpha, which bore the passengers homeward from St. Johns, Newfoundland,— on the morning of Thursday, Oct. 22, 1863. Thus closed the earthly career of Putnam, the brightest ornament of our class, the most beloved teacher in the college, and one of the finest minds and purest characters of our age.

His remains were taken directly to Hanover, and buried on Monday afternoon, Oct. 26th. The citizens of the village reverently bore them from the house of Prof. S. G. Brown to the college church. His pastor, Rev. S. P. Leeds, made a tender and appreciative address; two hymns, "Jesus, lover of my soul" and "Rock of Ages," favorites of his, were sung; prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. Noyes; the students formed in procession; the Professors carried his body on a bier, followed by relatives, friends, and citizens, to the cemetery near the college, there to repose where sleeps so much of hallowed dust.

We attempt not to analyze his character or delineate his life. It has been done as well as can be by the skillful pen of his intimate friend,— teacher of his youth and fellow worker in his manhood,—Rev. Dr. S. G. Brown, in the Memorial Discourse given at the third Septennial gathering of the class in July, 1864, a copy of which is in the hands of every classmate.

We shall never forget his winning face, his affable address, his gentle grace, his respectful modesty, and his irrepressible and exuberant wit, in our social intercourse; nor his charming rendering of the Greek classics and his perfect recitations in every science, in the class-room; nor his fine voice with a soul in it, in the music practice; nor yet the zest with which he gave himself to recreation in the walk, the play-ground and the military drill; nor least of all, his tenacious adherence to Christian principle and conduct. With his almost feminine sensibility and gentleness, he was not wanting in the exhibition of manly energy and force, when demanded by claims of duty. His early death is still mourned by his classmates, by the college which can not soon fill his place, and by the whole community of Christian scholars as well as by most intimate friends.

We naturally regret that we have none of the results of his studies in printed form. He wrote but little for the press; he was too sensitive and modest. Then he was intent on his duties as a teacher; and had no time. Some carefully prepared papers for the magazines are all we know. One of the best is a notice of the works of Hon. Rufus Choate in the Bibliotheca Sacra for April, 1863.

But he wrote upon material that can not perish. Upon the minds of his pupils, of his classmates, and of all who ever knew him, must be read through the ages what he impressed upon their lives.

> "Can that man be dead
> Whose spiritual influence is upon his kind?
> He lives in glory, and his speaking dust
> Has more of life than half its breathing moulds."

He married, in Hanover, N. H., August 5, 1851, Sarah Gilman, daughter of Prof. William Chamberlain, D. C., 1818, Professor of Latin and Greek Languages at Dartmouth, from 1820 to 1830; and sister of Dr. William M. Chamberlain, D. C., 1845. She died in Hanover, Sept. 7, 1864, aged 34 years.

JOHN WASON RAY.

Teacher; Cong. Clergyman; Hastings, Dakota Co., Minnesota.

Born,— Chester (now Auburn), N. H., Dec. 23, 1814.

Parents,— Stark and Hannah C. (Wason) Ray.

His preparatory studies were pursued at Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H., under Preceptor Hildreth. After graduation, he was Principal of Atkinson Academy, N. H., one year; Manchester High School, N. H., four years, 1844–1848; Eastport High School, Me., one year; associated with Prof. Wm. Russell, in the Normal Institute, Merrimack, N. H., two years; Principal of Pembroke Academy, N. H., two terms in 1852–3; Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H., from 1853 to 1856. He has assisted in several County Institutes.

He studied theology privately, and was licensed to preach, Oct., 1856, by the Manchester Association, N. H.

He supplied the Cong. Church in Goffstown, N. H., from April 1, 1857 until May, 1867, residing in Manchester, and caring for a good estate which he inherited. He represented the town of Derry in the year of 1856, in the Legislature of New Hampshire; and was Superintendent of Schools in Manchester, one year from Aug., 1859. Was also Moderator of town meeting and member of School Committee in Derry, in 1854 and 1855. In 1867, he went to Hastings, Minn., as pastor of a church.

He married, July 28, 1844, Lucy Lee, daughter of Rev. Benj. Sargeant, of Chester, N. H. She died, July 17, 1845.

He married, Dec. 28, 1848, Georgeanna, daughter of Dr. James Babb, of Manchester, N. H.

EMORE DAILY RICHARDSON.

Teacher; Farmer; Prairie Lea, near Lockhart, Caldwell Co., Texas.

Born,—Lisbon, N. H., May 20, 1816.

Parents,—John and Olive (——) Richardson.

His fitting for college was made at Meriden, N. H. In the fall of 1843, he taught in Whitefield Academy, N. H. In Dec. of that year he went to Thibodeaux, La.; read law with R. C. Roby, Esq., but never practiced it as a profession. He was engaged, for some twelve or fifteen years, as teacher in that place.

Our only letter from him was in June, 1850. His brother James Richardson, Esq., of Littleton, N. H., writes as follows: "He has written but few letters to his New Hampshire friends. The last I received from him was in Oct., 1860, stating that he had bought a large tract of valuable land between the Brazos and Trinity rivers in Texas, and was farming on a large scale. Said he had the best wife in Texas, and three children. During the late civil war, I used frequently to see accounts in the papers of the operations in Louisiana of a Col., afterwards Gen. Richardson in the rebel service. It might or might not have been my brother. I think his sympathies were with the south. The last I ever read of that man, he was captured, and, while attempting to escape, was shot."

The Secretary has to add, that, in reply to a letter of inquiry sent to Thibodeaux, a gentleman wrote expressing the opinion that a Gen. Richardson whom he knew in the rebel service, was a graduate of Dartmouth, and answered to the description given of our classmate.

JONATHAN SMITH ROSS.

Physician; Great Falls, Strafford Co., N. H.

Born,—Lisbon, N. H., April 12, 1822.

Parents,—Samuel and Fanny Putnam (Smith) Ross, daughter of Jonathan Smith, Esq., of Bath, N. H.

He fitted for college at Holmes Academy, Plymouth, N. H., under those eminent educators, Revs. S. R. Hall and T. D. P. Stone.

After graduating, he began the study of medicine in Littleton, N. H., with Adams Moore, M. D., D. C., 1822. From Nov., 1843 to Oct., 1844 he spent in a course of dissections with Timothy Haynes, M. D., in Concord, N. H. Went to Philadelphia and attended a course of Medical Lectures in the University of Pennsylvania in the winter of 1844–5. Returning to New England, he continued his studies with Dr. Moore and attended his second course of lectures in Hanover, in 1845. Going again to Philadelphia in October, 1845, he pursued his medical studies there, and received the degree of M. D., from the University of Pennsylvania, in April, 1846.

He soon after went to Boston, opened an office in United States Hotel, and remained until Nov., pursuing his studies mostly in the hospitals in that city.

From November, 1846 to autumn of 1852, he was in partnership with John French, M. D., in Bath, N. H. From autumn of 1852 to 1855, he practiced his profession in Rollinsford, N. H. In 1855, he commenced practice in Great Falls, Somersworth, N. H.

He represented the town of Rollinsford in the State Legislature in 1855. For two years, 1857 and 1858, he was an active member of the School Committee of Somersworth.

In Aug., 1862, he was appointed Surgeon of the 11th Regiment of New Hampshire Volunteers, and afterwards Brigade Surgeon of the 2d Brigade, 2d Division, 9th Army Corps, Gen. S. G. Griffin. In the year 1865, he was stationed Post Surgeon at Concord, N. H.

Honorably discharged from government service, he resumed the practice of his profession in Great Falls, where he enjoys the good reputation, the good practice, and good pay of a skillful physician and surgeon.

He married, March 31, 1847, Martha Ann, daughter of Maj. Aaron Brackett, of Littleton, N. H.

CHILDREN.

1. Winfred Smith, born Dec. 3, 1865.

ENOCH PUTNEY ROWELL.

Teacher; Mobile, Alabama.

Born,— Hopkinton, N. H., April 27, 1817.

Parents,— Moses and Mary (Pettengill) Rowell.

His studies preparatory to entering college were in Hopkinton Academy, under the tuition of David Dickey, D. C. 1835. He was consumptive. The failure of his health during junior year, culminating in an alarming hemorrhage from the lungs, compelled him to leave college at the close of this year, and make a trip to the southern states, in the autumn of 1842. His death occurred in Mobile, Ala., Jan. 3, 1843, twenty days after reaching that city. His mortal remains were there consigned to dust by his brother Joseph.

Rowell bore an excellent character. A certain attractive modesty, a self-denying regard for the happiness of others, united with so much of real talent and nobility of soul, made him greatly beloved by those who had found him out. He loved music; he loved poetry. In an appreciative knowledge of the best authors in English literature he was not surpassed by any classmate. His accomplishments in music led the Handel Society of the college, in July, 1842, to elect him as their President. But he never met with the Society after his election. It is said he was calm and resigned in the last struggle. In the words of that passage from David, which he so often and so tenderly sung with his pleasant voice, each living classmate will now unite:

> "Friend of my soul, let sorrow cease;
> Hope whispers, we shall meet again,
> Restored to safety, love and peace."

EDWARD ERASMUS SARGEANT.

Attorney at Law; Grand Rapids, Kent Co., Mich.

Born,— Hillsborough, N. H., June 17, 1820.

Parents,— Edward and Rebecca (Keyes) Sargeant.

His parents spent their later years in Windsor, Vt. The Hon. Benjamin C. Sargeant, late Mayor of Lowell, Mass., is his only brother.

Our classmate early entered a store in Lowell, Mass., as clerk, and remained until his 17th year. At this age, he became a student in Newbury Seminary, Vt., where his preparatory course for college was pursued with great diligence and success. His sister Betsey, some years his senior, a lady of much business energy and tact, aided him, from her own earnings, through college.

No classmate pursued his college curriculum with better judgment or greater advantage. His mind was quick and well balanced; clear and discriminating. His habits as a student were systematic and judicious. He knew how to study and when to study. His collateral reading and studies were well directed and extensive. In a knowledge of the French language and literature he was inferior to no one in college. No subject assigned him was neglected; everything was done and well done. His social nature was large; but his companions were prudently selected. The mean and reckless felt they could never get near him, and they seldom, if ever, tried to do it. His whole college life was eminently manly; and assiduously devoted to its high purposes.

Immediately after graduation, he went to Eatonton, Putnam Co., Georgia, in charge of a Female Seminary in that place. Here he remained two years, pursuing, at the same time, the study of law with Judge Merriwether. He was admitted to the bar in Macon, Ga., and returned to New Hampshire in 1845. After pursuing his legal studies a few months, with Judge Leonard Wilcox, D. C., 1817, of Orford, he went to Pembroke in March, 1846, and remained until the next November, assisting the writer, his most intimate college friend, in the Academy there, still continuing his law studies under Judge Ira Perley, D. C., 1822, of Concord.

In company with R. W. Cole, he went to Grand Rapids, Kent Co., Mich., in Nov., 1846, and was admitted to practice in the Chancery and U. S. Courts of the state. His partnership with Cole was closed April 1, 1847. After a few months spent in a subordinate capacity in the office of Ball & Martin, he was admitted as partner under the firm of Ball, Withey & Sargeant. His business and his fame as a lawyer rapidly increased. In May, 1850, he was appointed by the governor, to fill a vacancy in the office of Prosecuting Attorney for Kent Co. By popular election, he continued to fill this office with signal ability, until declining health compelled him to leave it. Some of the most important criminal cases ever known in the state were successfully carried through during his official service, and his legal reputation was so much enhanced that he was acknowledged as holding the first rank at the bar of his county, if not of the state.

In May, 1853, he made a journey to Europe; visited with nice discrimination the remarkable places of England, France, Switzerland, Austria, Turkey, Greece, Asia Minor and Italy. In November, invigorated in body and mind, he returned to his home and resumed, with new zeal, his professional practice. Cases of great difficulty and magnitude were committed to him. He was crowded with labor. Besides his professional work, he edited, for several months, the Grand Rapids Enquirer. Confinement to his office and close attention to his studies and his business soon developed the organic throat disease which had so long threatened him. From Aug. to Dec., 1857, he struggled for the mastery over the disease. In this latter month, he went to New York and consulted eminent medical counsel, who told him he must give up all hope, of recovery. It was no surprise to him. With the calmness of a philosopher and the patient resignation of a Christian, he went home to die. His house was soon put in order. A cancerous tumor in his throat allowed him to swallow only by the most painful effort, and just enough to keep him from starvation. He suffered intensely; but his mind was tranquil. He became a member of the Episcopal communion, and bore clear testimony, in all his hours of pain, in his latest breath, to his reliance upon the One mighty to save. He died April 15, 1858, and was buried from St. Mark's church, on Sunday the 18th, with demonstrations of general sorrow and respect.

His wife, whose maiden name was Anna Sawyer Marston, daughter of Dea. Peter Marston of Orford, N. H., survives him. His marriage to her was in Eatonton, Ga. Oct. 21, 1843. They had no children except an adopted daughter, who died a few weeks before him, at the age of nearly 9 years. Mrs. S. was married to James M. Nelson, Esq., of Grand Rapids, May 31, 1860.

A gentleman who had been his pupil, and who succeeded to his practice, bears this testimony of him: "Mr. Sargeant's career of active life in this state was brief, but it was successful, and gave evidence of the possession of rare abilities. He had scholarship, practical wisdom and a keen insight into men and their motives. Nothing could induce him to go into a case where the "Equities" were not on the side of his client. He wrote well and spoke well. His arguments before juries were to the point, and seemed to carry conviction to the minds of his hearers. * *

In his profession, as an editor, as a practical Christian, he was known, loved and honored through all classes of society in the city and country. * * Around him there constantly seemed a certain indefinable reserve which forbade a too hasty approach to his confidence, but this once penetrated, his genial humor shone forth with remarkable brightness and warmth. He was true to the friends of his adoption. * * He was not ambitious of political fame. Offices of profit and trust were offered him which he modestly declined. He was ambitious only to reach that fame which is the reward of substantial merit, the fame of the real, true scholar, rather than that of a mere public favorite. But he is gone. Just as he seemed to be nearing the zenith of his usefulness, just as he had obtained a pecuniary competence which released him from all anxiety as to earth, he was called away to that Brighter Heaven."

Says the Grand Rapids Enquirer of April 20, 1858: "The character of Edward E. Sargeant needs no eulogy here. He was known and duly appreciated. It may be gratifying to his friends at a distance to know the estimation in which he was held. His principal characteristics were a clear and well disciplined mind, a gentle modest and unassuming deportment, and an undeviating adherence to moral principles. No voice has ever been raised to question his honor or his honesty. As a lawyer he was clear and discriminating, considered as good a judge of law as was to be found in this part of the state, and he had been looked to, for years, as one who would yet dignify the bench of the Supreme Court. He has lived beloved; his impress is on the place. He lives in many hearts that are left behind; and faith tells us he lives with God."

We extract the following from the funeral discourse pronounced by Rev. Dr. Cuming, Rector of St. Mark's Church:

"And where will not this loss be felt? Deeply may the church whose worship and offices our departed brother so much valued, deplore it. Deeply may the profession of which he was such an ornament; deeply may this community in many of whose departments there is now left a void not easily to be filled, deplore it. Liberally educated, well read in his profession, industrious in his habits, of close application to business, of unblemished morals, with a mind of wonderful quickness of perception, grasp and power, he had already shed luster upon his name, his profession, our city, our state. Magnanimous, fearless, upright, conscientious, courteous, we were proud of him; we all were proud of him. And we hoped such a steadfast friend, such an able counselor, such an honest man, such a cultivated mind, would have been long spared, more and more to adorn and benefit society."

EDWARD FAY SHERMAN.

Lawyer; Secretary of Insurance Co.; Lowell, Mass.

Born,— Acton, Mass., Feb. 10, 1821.

Parents,— Edward and Lucy (Fay) Sherman.

He prepared for college at New Ipswich Academy, under Rev. Charles Shedd, D. C., 1826. After his graduation, he was Preceptor of Pittsfield Academy, N. H., autumn of 1843 and spring of 1844. He commenced the study of law while teaching in Pittsfield, in the office of Norris & Butters, D. C., 1828 and 1837; pursued it in 1844, with Hon. Tappan Wentworth, in Lowell, Mass. From January, 1845 to Aug., 1846, he taught private schools in Bordentown and in Princeton, N. J. In Aug., 1846, he returned to the law office of Mr. Wentworth, in Lowell. He was admitted to the Middlesex Co. bar, in the spring of 1847, and practised with Mr. Wentworth until Oct., 1855.

At this time he became Secretary and Treasurer of the Traders and Mechanics' Insurance Co., in Lowell, which office he still holds. He represented Lowell in the Legislature of Massachusetts in 1862 and 1867. Is a Director of the Prescott Bank, Lowell. He was never fond of law business, but is much esteemed and successful in his present post and among his fellow citizens.

He married, Oct. 28, 1851, Marianne McDonough, daughter of John Berry, Esq., of Pittsfield, N. H. She died in Lowell, March 18, 1853.

His second marriage, Dec. 16, 1855, was to Rebecca Swan, daughter of Leonard Alden, of Dedham, Mass.

LEMUEL CHANDLER SPOFFORD.

Pastor O. S. Pres. Church; Laporte, Laporte Co., Ind.

Born,— Ipswich, Mass., May 31, 1816.

Parents,— Chandler and Betsey Walker (Cobb) Spofford, the latter a descendant of Lemuel Brewster of the Mayflower. His parents moved to Bedford, N. H., in his early boyhood.

His preparatory studies were pursued in Gilmanton, N. H., under Rev. E. N. Hidden, D. C., 1836, and Rev. E. C. Cogswell, D. C., 1838. He took his theological course of three years, at Bangor, Me., where he graduated, in 1846.

Appointed by the American Home Missionary Society, he preached from Sept., 1846 to 1860, at Fond du Lac, Wis.; built up a strong church, and was signally successful. In Nov., 1860, he located at Depere, Brown Co., Wis., where he remained as pastor of the O. S. Pres. church, until the spring of 1866, when he settled as pastor of the O. S. Pres. church, in Laporte, Ind. In 1858, he was Commissioner in the O. S. Presbyterian Assembly, which met at New Orleans, La. For two years he was Superintendent of Schools in Depere.

In Aug., 1867, while riding, he was stricken with something like apoplexy, fell from his carriage and was seriously injured. From this time his life was one of physical decline and suffering. Yet, he continued to perform, so far as possible, his pastoral duties to the latest week of his life. Sinking away slowly, calmly, and fearlessly, he went to rest, April 12, 1869. He is spoken of in a local paper, as "the joy of his flock, beloved by all; his life was calm and beautiful; he had fought the good fight."

A brother minister writes of him in the Presbyterian, as follows:

"Few men have had more devoted friends or have won them more worthily, than this deceased Christian brother; and the tidings of his death will send a wave of sorrow through many hearts. He was eminently a follower of the Master, and one who largely imbibed and practically illustrated, the Spirit of Christ. His brethren, his churches, and the world with which he came in contact, saw that he had sat at Jesus' feet, and learned of Him. Of course, the end of such a man was peaceful. He died as those trusting in Christ only can die.

To preach the gospel was this brother's highest joy. For this only he lived and desired to live. As long as he could stand in his pulpit he insisted upon being taken to the church, and upon preaching to his people. And when he could do this no longer, he continued to conduct the weekly prayer-meeting, which was transferred from the church to his own house. On the Thursday evening before his death he addressed a few words to those there assembled, and at the close of the meeting, lifted up his thin and feeble hands and pronounced the usual benediction.

Mr. Spofford was a useful and successful pastor. He was an able and an attractive preacher; but perhaps his crowning excellence was the beautiful symmetry of his Christian character, which made him universally beloved where he was known."

His classmates who remember his good-natured face, his genial friendship, and his deep, unostentatious, and uniform piety in college, will not be surprised, but gladdened, when they read this testimony to the manner of his maturer life and its sublime and glorious end.

He married, July 27, 1846, Esther Parsons, daughter of Josiah Parsons, M. D., of Bangor, Me.

CHILDREN.

1. Henry Chandler, born April 20, 1853; died June 10, 1859.
2. John Frederick, " Oct. 6, 1856.

LYMAN DEWEY STEVENS.

Attorney at Law; Concord, N. H.

Born,— Piermont, N. H., Sept. 20, 1821.

Parents,— Caleb and Sally (Dewey) Stevens.

His preparatory course was pursued at Haverhill Academy, N. H., John Lord, D. C., 1833, and Daniel F. Merrill, D. C., 1836, Principals.

After graduating, he taught the Academy in Stanstead, C. E., two years from Sept., 1843, and assisted Tenney in the Academy at Pembroke, N. H., a few weeks in the autumn of 1846.

While in Stanstead he read law with E. C. Johnson, Esq., of Derby, Vt., and continued his legal studies in the office of Hon. Ira Perley, D. C., 1822, in Concord, N. H., from the autumn of 1845 until his admission to the Merrimack Co. Bar in Oct., 1847. He immediately opened an office in Concord, which he has occupied ever since in the successful practice of his profession, and in the enjoyment of that confidence which strict attention to business, uniform courtesy, sound discretion and unvarying integrity generally secure.

He has been, for several years, Secretary of Merrimack Co. Bar. When Hon. Israel W. Kelly was Pension Agent for New Hampshire, he was his clerk. This led to an acquaintance with the Pension business, and resulted in making his principal business for some years, the prosecution of pensions and war claims. He was appointed by Gov. Gilmore, to adjust the suspended war claims of New Hampshire against the United States accruing prior to May, 1863; also, to attend the dedication of the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 19, 1863, as Commissioner from New Hampshire. In 1865, he was made a Director of the National State Capital Bank.

His interest in charitable objects has led to his appointment as Vice President and Treasurer of the New Hampshire Missionary Society, and Treasurer of New Hampshire Colonization Society.

In the educational work, he is a Trustee of Boscawen Academy and of Kimball Union Academy. He was School Committee of Concord two years, and for the years 1864, '65, '66, a member of the City Board of Education.

He has been, for many years, a Justice of the Peace; was City Solicitor in 1855 and 1856; and in 1860, '61, '66, '67, an influential member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives. He was elected Mayor of Concord in March, 1868, and reelected in 1869.

He married, Aug. 21, 1850, Achsah Pollard, daughter of Capt. Theodore French, of Concord, N. H. She died of consumption, July 2, 1863.

CHILDREN.

1. Margaret French, born May, 6, 1851.
2. Henry Webster, " March 5, 1853.

ROBERT STUART.

Cong. Clergyman; Marshalltown, Marshall Co., P. O., Iowa.

Born,—Newtown, N. H., June 19, 1814.

Parents,— Joseph and Rebecca (Bell) Stuart.

In college days, his mother resided in Lowell, Mass., where Stuart had wrought as shoemaker. His sister, Ruth E., was wife of the late S. J. Varney, the well known editor of the Lowell Vox Populi.

He studied theology at the Seminary in Bangor, Me., and graduated Sept., 1846. He was a city missionary in Bangor for one year, 1846 to 1847.

He was ordained and settled in Cascade, Dubuque Co., Iowa, Nov., 1847; and remained there until Aug. 1, 1852, when he was dismissed. Went to Strafford, Vt., and preached until Sept., 1854. Owing to the failure of his health, he was then obliged to relinquish the ministry and labor on a farm. This he continued to do in Norwich, Vt., from 1854 to 1859. Being recruited in health, he went to Albany, Ill., as preacher, in July, 1859. In Jan., 1860, he began to preach in Orford, Tama Co., Iowa, and in May following, in Green-Mountain, Iowa. He supplied both places until July, 1868. Now he is stated preacher at the latter place, with a growing and prosperous church and pleasant relations. He is a self-denying, good, and useful minister.

He married Harriet Molencia, daughter of Ashley Blodgett, of Middlesex, Vt., Oct. 16, 1849.

JOSEPH EMERSON SWALLOW.

Pastor of Cong. Church; Groton, New London Co., Ct.

Born,—Nashua, N. H., April 21, 1817.

Parents,—Dea. Joseph and Betsey (Twist) Swallow.

His preparatory course was pursued at Nashua, N. H., Pepperell and Andover, Mass.

He spent two years after graduating, chiefly in teaching. From autumn of 1845, he spent one year in Andover Theological Seminary and two years in the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, where he graduated in 1848. He was ordained and settled in Greenport, L. I., July 18, 1848, from which place he was dismissed, April, 1850. After spending a few months in Nashua recruiting his health, he was installed at Wilmington, Mass., March, 26, 1851; dismissed January 1, 1856. Installed at Nantucket, Mass., May, 1856; dismissed Aug. 24, 1858.

Installed, Southampton, Mass., Oct. 6, 1859; dismissed Oct. 6, 1862.

He removed to Woburn, Mass., with impaired health, and spent his time mostly, after two years, in supplying vacant pulpits in the vicinity. A difficulty which arose between himself and Rev. Dr. Bodwell, D. C., 1833, of whose church he was a member, became a public matter and resulted in his expulsion. The action of the church was rescinded by the Council of Churches which sat upon the case subsequently. He left Woburn, and was installed over a church in Groton, Ct., June 11, 1867.

He was married, Nov. 1, 1848, to Maria Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Gibson, Esq., of Townsend, Mass.

CHILDREN.

1. Harriett Endicott, born March 22, 1850; died July 18, 1851.

LEVI BENJAMIN TAFT.

Attorney at Law; Chicago, Cook Co., Ill.

Born,— Bellingham, Mass., Aug. 6, 1821.

Parents,— Benjamin, of Richmond, N. H., and Vienna (Cook) Taft, of South Bellingham, Mass.

He went to Detroit, Mich., and read law with Hon. Jacob M. Howard and Messrs. Barstow & Lockwood. Was admitted to the bar, in that city, in 1845. Soon after, he was appointed by Chief Justice John McLean, Master in Chancery and Commissioner of the United States Courts for the District of Michigan, which office he held till he left the state, in 1853. He was in the practice of law in Detroit till February, 1848, being for some time law partner with Hon. Harrison C. Hobart, D. C., 1842.

At this date he went to Niles, Mich., and became partner with Hon. Hiram F. Mather, with whom he is still associated. In the spring of 1849, he was chosen Recorder and corporation Attorney for the city of Niles. In 1850, being the whig candidate, he was elected Prosecuting Attorney for the county of Berrien for two years, while the democratic candidates for other county offices were chosen by more than three hundred majority,—a substantial proof of his popularity. He was, also, Inspector of Schools in Niles.

In January, 1853, he removed to Chicago, where he still resides in the practice of his profession. In Chicago, he was one of the founders and trustees of the Third Presbyterian church; was several years vice president and president of the Chicago Bible Society. In February, 1863, he was made a life member of the American Bible Society.

In 1858, he was elected a member of the Chicago Board of Education, which office he held several years. In 1864, he was chairman of the Board. He has been abundantly blest in professional and domestic life.

He married in Pontiac, Oakland Co., Mich., Dec. 24, 1846, Julia Ann, daughter of Jacob G. Bishop, formerly of Homer, N. Y.

JONATHAN TENNEY.

Teacher; Albany, N. Y.

Born,— Corinth, Orange Co., Vt., Sept. 14, 1817.

Parents,— Jonathan and Lydia Owen (Crane) Tenney.

Thomas Tenney, the common ancestor of the Tenneys of this country, was an English Puritan, born in Yorkshire, England, and a member of the Ezekiel Rogers colony, which, in 1639, settled the "Rogers Plantation," now Rowley, Mass., and vicinity.

From his early boyhood, his parents had their home in Newbury, Vt. In the Seminary in this town under the tuition of Rev. Charles Adams and Rev. Osmon C. Baker, D. D., since a Bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in Bradford Academy, Vt., Rev. Franklin Butler, Principal, he pursued his studies preparatory to college.

The following is extracted from a sketch of Tenney prepared by Hon. Henry Barnard, late Commissioner of the National Bureau of Education and published in the American Journal of Education, for Dec., 1866.

* * * After graduating in 1843, he taught for a short time, the Academy in Hebron, N. H.; but resigned in order to establish a High School in Newbury, Vt., which was successfully organized under his care. He was then, five years Principal of Pembroke Academy, N. H., which attained under his management a high reputation and popularity. A portion of his time was here devoted to the study of law; but he adopted teaching as his profession, and from this time lost no opportunity to extend his acquaintance with the best schools and educators, their principles and methods. A desire for wider experience, a spirit of independent and progressive action, and an unwillingness to become settled in any one routine of thought and action, have induced a frequent change of position by voluntary resignations, and have prompted the undertaking of much collateral work.

* * * In 1854, he undertook with great success, the editorship of an independent weekly newspaper. From 1855 to 1857, he was, at the same time, Chairman of the School Committee of Manchester, Commissioner of Schools for Hillsborough Co., and Secretary of the State Board of Education. His Reports in these several capacities were full, able, and models of their kind. During this time, he introduced various reforms in the city schools, visited many schools of the state, conducted Teachers Institutes, and lectured and taught upon various subjects in all parts of the state. In 1854, he was the originator of the New Hampshire State Teachers' Association, and has always been one of its most active and practical workers and supporters. He was elected its President in 1855 and 1856; and was, after Jan., 1862, the resident editor of the New Hampshire Journal of Education. He prepared and published the first catalogue of teachers and schools that has ever appeared for any state; and has contributed largely to the educational and other statistics of the country. * * *

In Aug., 1849, resigning his place in Pembroke, he became Master of the South Grammar School in Lawrence, Mass. Being elected Principal of Pittsfield High School, Mass., he entered upon this trust in Nov., 1850; organized the school, and remained in its charge until his resignation in March, 1853. While here he was actively engaged in the educational work of the state, especially in Berkshire Co. Returning to New Hampshire, he was chosen Principal of Manchester High School in April, 1853; and held the place until he resigned in Nov., 1854, to become Editor and Publisher of the Stars and Stripes. This he sold at the end of one year, to enter upon the public work of education.

During the two years next succeeding, he was occupied chiefly in his duties as chairman of the School Committee of Manchester; in visiting the schools of the thirty-one towns of Hillsborough Co., and giving about seventy-five public addresses; in arranging and conducting his own county institutes for ten weeks, and lecturing in those of eight of the ten counties of the state; in conducting correspondence as Secretary of the Board of Education; and in preparing the city, county, and state school reports.

In 1856, the Trustees of Boscawen Academy, N. H., a school founded by Rev. Dr. Samuel Wood, D. C., 1779, and Hon. Ezekiel Webster, D. C., 1804, having proposed to repair their buildings, lease the same free of expense for twenty years, and surrender to him their trust, he accepted the proposition; opened his school in March, 1857, under the name of Elmwood Literary Institute, and successfully sustained it through the next nine years of financial depression and civil war.

In Sept., 1866, having sold his interest in Boscawen, six months previous, he purchased in Newton Center, Mass., and opened a family and day school for girls, called Silver Lake Institute, which he disposed of in July, 1868; went to Albany, N. Y., the health of his family requiring change, and accepted temporarily the state agency of a New York Life Insurance Company.

His invitations to take charge of other Schools, and School Institutes and Superintendencies have been very many; and he proposes to return to his profession as an educator, when the desired location opens to him.

He has always been a member and working officer in Sabbath Schools and local literary and religious conventions and associations. He is a life member of the American Home Missionary Society, and of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

In civil affairs, besides being an officer in several political organizations, he has been Moderator of town meetings, and has held commissions as Coroner and as State Justice, in New Hampshire. During the late war he served as Enrolling Officer.

He is a Corresponding Member of the Vermont, Wisconsin, and New Hampshire Historical, and New England Historic-Genealogical Societies, and of other literary associations.

He has lectured before several academies and educational associations in New England and New York. He has been an officer in Essex County, Middlesex County, Berkshire County, and Massachusetts State Teachers' Associations. In every large town where he has taught, he has organized and helped sustain Teachers' Associations. Out of the one in Manchester originated the New Hampshire State Association, which was organized at Concord in June, 1854, incorporated the next July, and has, ever since, been the most interesting and efficient agency in the educational progress of that state, through its annual meetings and publications.

In 1855 and 1856, he was a member of the School Committee in Manchester, N. H.; also, for six years, School Committee of Boscawen, N. H. Besides Institute work in New Hampshire, he has done the same work in Vermont, Massachusetts, and New York. In 1865, he was appointed by Gov. Frederick Smyth, School Commissioner for Merrimack Co., N. H., which place he resigned on leaving the state in 1866.

Besides numerous contributions to the Newspapers and Magazines and as Editor of Stars and Stripes, 1854–5; Massachusetts Teacher, 1853, and New Hampshire Journal of Education, 1860, '61, '62, he has prepared the following publications:—1. Septenary Catalogue of Dartmouth Class of 1843, 1850; 2. Reports on the Schools of Manchester,

N. H., 1856; 3 to 8. Six Annual Reports on Schools in Boscawen N. H., 1858—64; 9, 10. Tenth and Eleventh Annual Reports of New Hampshire Board of Education, 1856, 1857; 11. Watch Repairer's Hand-Book, Boston, 1868; 12. Class Memorial of Dartmouth Class of 1843, Albany, 1869; 13, 14. Two Reports on Schools of Hillsborough Co., N. H., 1856, 1857; 15. Genealogical and Historical Memoirs of the Tenney Family; a work of about 500 pages, now in preparation. Also numerous Academic Catalogues, Statistical Reports and Circulars on various topics.

He married in Boston, Mass., March 20, 1852, Harriette Ackland, daughter of Calvin Bachelder, M. D., D. C., 1825, of Salisbury, N. H., and Preceptress of Pittsfield High School, Mass. She died in Boscawen, N. H., Sept. 13, 1864.

He married, Sept. 19, 1866, Ellen Janette, daughter of Jonathan B. LeGro, of Great Falls, N. H., and late Associate Teacher in Elmwood Institute, Boscawen, N. H., in Rhode Island Normal School, and in Prof. Lincoln's Young Ladies' School, Providence, R. I.

DANIEL SMITH WHEELER.

Teacher; Minerva; Mason Co., Ky.

Born,—South Reading, Vt., Oct. 28, 1817.

Parents,—John Wheeler, Esq., and Annis (Smith) Wheeler.

Hon. Albert D. Hagar, of Proctersville, the distinguished Vermont State Geologist, married his sister Julia, who died May, 1849.

He fitted for college in the academies of Chester and Ludlow, Vt. He taught a select school in Springfield, Vt., during the autumn of 1841.

On the 16th of August, 1843, he left home to fulfill an engagement as a teacher; Sept. 15th, he commenced his school in Minerva, Mason Co., Ky.; Oct. 3d, he closed it for the last time. The excitement and exertions of the last few weeks were too much for his delicate health.

Oct. 12th, he died of bilious fever succeeding hemorrhage. He was buried in Minerva, on the banks of Ohio river, seventy miles above Cincinnati.

Wheeler was an invalid all his college days. He scarcely knew, says a family friend, what comfortable health was. He had several attacks of pulmonary hemorrhage. With all this hindrance, he ranked well as a scholar, and was always an active and public spirited member of the class. It was natural to him to please; he always put the bright side out to his friends. Gentle, genial, generous, his manners winning, his bearing noble, he secured in an unusual degree, the respect and affection of his classmates.

With unaffected sincerity, we say, Honor to his memory, rest to his emancipated spirit.

CHARLES WILLIAMS.

Rail road Engineer; Agent; Beloit, Rock Co., Wis.

Born,— Westminster, Mass., Sept. 14, 1816.

Parents,— Isaac and Polly (Eaton) Williams.

His college fitting was pursued in Jamestown, N. Y., with Geo. W. Parker, Esq. After graduating, he taught awhile in Canton and Jamestown, N. Y.

He read law with Judge Marvin, Jamestown, N. Y., and Judge Storer of Cincinnati, O. The necessity to his health of an active, out door life, led him to choose the vocation of an Engineer. After 1847, was engaged as Engineer or Agent on the New York and Erie, Atlantic and Great Western, and Minnesota Central Rail Roads. He was, for awhile, Land Commissioner for the Minneapolis and Cedar Valley Rail Road, by appointment of the governor of Minnesota.

His residences since leaving college, have been in Canton, N. Y., one year; in Jamestown, N. Y., ten years; in Faribault, Min., six years. Since 1862, his residence has been in Beloit, Wis. His success seems to have been good. Now engaged in traveling agencies in the Northern Central states.

He married, May 11, 1847, Mary Farnsworth, of Fitchburg, Mass.

CHILDREN.

1. Mary Tyler, born May 30, 1850.
2. Emma Francis, " Sept. 25, 1857.

LUTHER ORVAL WINSLOW.

Cumb. Pres. Clergyman; Teacher; Wingos Station, Graves Co., Ky.

Born,—Westfield, Vt., April 30, 1817.

Parents,—Dea. Luther and Mary (Hitchcock) Winslow, They, for many years, resided in Sunderland, Mass.

His preparatory course was pursued under Rev. Dr. E. E. Adams, D. C., 1836, at Lyndon Academy, Vt.

In Sept., 1843, he went to Louisville, Ky., and spent about one year in that vicinity. In Nov., 1844, he went to Memphis, Tenn., and soon after, to Marshall Co., Miss. Here and in De Soto Co., Miss., he was engaged in teaching until the spring of 1852.

In March, 1847, he received license to preach the gospel from the Mac Donald Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and was ordained by the same Presbytery in 1849.

He removed, in April, 1852, to Graves Co., Ky., in the south-west part of that state, where he now resides. He carries on a farm of eighty acres, and preaches in churches, school houses, and in arbors in the woods,— to no organized congregation, being hindered by rebel influence. He has suffered, like most Union men in Kentucky, for fealty to country and conscience; but writes cheerfully and hopefully.

He married, Dec. 9, 1847, in Marshall Co., Miss., Rebecca Marien, daughter of David Mann Gill, of Tennesee.

CHILDREN.

1. David Luther, born Feb. 10, 1850.

ABEL WOOD.

Cong. Clergyman; Teacher; Albany, N. Y.

Born,— Westminster, Mass., Jan. 7, 1818.

Parents,— Dea. Benjamin F., and Lucinda (Merriam) Wood. Franklin Wood, D. C., 1841, is a brother.

His preparatory course was pursued at Westminster Academy, under Rev. James T. McCollom, D. C., 1835, and R. S. Hitchcock.

In the autumn of 1843, he was chosen the first Principal of the Beloit Seminary, Wis., out of which grew Beloit College, and remained one year.

He studied theology at Andover Theological Seminary, and graduated in 1848. Was licensed by the Worcester North Association, Mass., and supplied the Cong. church in Warner, N. H., one year from Feb., 1851; and the 1st Cong. church in St. Johnsbury, Vt., six months from Sept., 1853. His health has compelled him to decline all calls to assume a pastorate, and led him to adopt teaching as a profession. He still preaches frequently on the sabbath.

He was principal of Canton Academy, St Lawrence Co., N. Y., in 1849–50; of Gilbertsville Collegiate Institute, Otsego Co., N. Y., from March, 1852 to March, 1853; and from March, 1854 to July, 1856. From Aug., 1856 to March, 1869, he was associate teacher in the widely known Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., with the veteran Cyrus S. Richards, LL.D., D. C., 1835. At this latter date, he became Principal of the Albany Academy, Albany, N. Y.

As a teacher, he is judicious, accurate, and much esteemed. In 1863, he was chosen a Vice President of the American Institute, and he has been an active member and officer of the New Hampshire State Teachers' Association, and of other educational and charitable bodies. He has labored acceptably in the New Hampshire Teachers' Institutes.

He married, July 26, 1849, Sarah Ann, daughter of Aaron Patten, of Kingston, N. H., and sister of classmate Patten. Before marriage she was a successful Preceptress.

CHILDREN.

1. William Benjamin, born March 23, 1851.

WILLIAM RIDDLE WOODBURY.

Lawyer; Land Agent; Farmer; Bedford, Hillsborough Co., N. H.

Born,—Bedford, N. H., Dec. 31, 1821.

Parents,—Peter P. Woodbury, M. D., and Martha (Riddle) Woodbury. He is a nephew of Hon. Levi Woodbury, D. C., 1809, and Rev. James Trask Woodbury; cousin of Hon. Luke Woodbury, D. C. 1820. Peter Trask Woodbury, D. C., 1839, is a brother.

He fitted for college at Gilmanton Academy, N. H.

After graduating, he went to Detroit, Mich., where he was engaged in mercantile pursuits for about a year and a half. Thence he went to Sheboygan, Wis., and followed speculating in land.

He was associated for awhile with Hon. H. C. Hobart, D. C., 1842, in law practice, and held the office of a Land Agent.

He was successful for a time; but an unfortunate turn in his business led him back to his old home in Bedford, where he remained one year. He returned to Wisconsin; but tarried there only about six months. Came again to Bedford in failing health, and lived, for several years, cultivating a farm belonging to his father.

He died in Bedford, May, 27, 1860, and was buried in the cemetery in that town.

Woodbury might have been one of the brightest ornaments of his class. Endowed by nature with an active and acute mind, belonging to a family of decided talent and influence, few had finer advantages.

In Detroit, Mich., June 1, 1847, he married Elizabeth Louisa Jackson, of Rochester, N. Y. She died in Bedford, April 27, 1859.

RALPH WEBSTER COLE.

Attorney at Law; Grand Rapids, Mich.

Born,— Orford, N. H., Jan. 25, 1818.

Parents,— John and Eunice (Niles) Cole.

His preparatory course was pursued in the Academies at Bradford and Thetford, Vt., and Meriden, N. H. He was with us through our Freshman year; went to Union College, and graduated in 1843. He read law in Lodi, N. Y., two years, and one year with Hon. Leonard Wilcox, in Orford, N. H. In Dec., 1846, he began to practice in Grand Rapids, Mich., and continued to do so until his decease. Classmate Sargeant was his partner about one year.

He was Postmaster of Grand Rapids in 1849; City Solicitor, 1850, '54, '55; Alderman, 1853; and Mayor, 1851, '52. Also, in 1847, '48, for one year he was Associate Editor of Grand Rapids Eagle.

He died of small pox, in Grand Rapids, July, 30, 1855, and was buried there. With few early advantages, he, by perseverance, energy, and good character, made life a success. Says a city paper, after his decease: "In all his official situations he acquitted himself with credit. * * * He was a man of few words, but of many thoughts. * * Remarkably attentive to business. * * * A counselor, at once frank, honorable, and reliable. As a gentleman, he was courteous without ostentation, decided in his opinions, free from acrimony. * * * The friends of temperance and good morals have lost, in his death, a consistent, energetic and uncompromising advocate, and one whose services were always freely and promptly rendered."

He married Julia, daughter of William Mosely, Esq., of Grand Rapids, Dec., 19, 1847.

CHILDREN.

JAMES JENNISON GILES.

Pres. Clergyman; St. Johnsville, Montgomery Co., N. Y.

Born,—Kingsboro', Fulton Co., N. Y., Jan. 9, 1816.

His home was at St. Johnsville, Montgomery Co., N. Y.

He was at Dartmouth through Freshman and Sophomore years; graduated at Union College in 1843; studied theology one year in Union Seminary, New York city, and at Princeton, N. J., two years.

It was his intention to go as a missionary to China; but his health failing, he was obliged to relinquish his purpose.

He died Oct. 10, 1846, as is supposed, at St. Johnsville, N. Y. He was a retiring, honest, sincere man, who wished only to know and do his duty.

TALLYRAND GROVER.

When in college he hailed from Bethel, Me., where he was born about 1822. He was with us through Freshman year; graduated from Bowdoin College in 1843.

He is reported to have been teaching in Philadelphia, Pa., and in Camden, N. J., most of the time prior to 1850. He is reported in the last Bowdoin Triennial, as Professor of Rhetoric and Modern and Ancient Languages in Delaware College, and as having died in 1859, aged thirty-seven years. While at Dartmouth, he was noted for diligence in his studies, fine sensibilities, unobtrusive manners, and remarkable precision in his recitations.

ALVAH HOVEY.

Professor in Theological Institution; Newton Center, Mass.

Born,— Green, Chenango Co., N. Y., March 5, 1820.

Parents,— Alfred and Abigail (Howard) Hovey. Amos White, D. C., 1842, and Charles Edward, D. C., 1852, are brothers. His parents moved to Thetford, Vt.

He fitted for college in Thetford and Brandon, Vt.; entered with the class in Aug., 1839; left early in his Junior year, 1841, to teach in Derby Academy, Vt.; and returned to graduate in the Class of 1844.

After graduation, he taught fifteen months in New London Academy, N. H. He pursued a regular course of study in Newton Theological Institution, graduating in 1848. He supplied the Baptist Church, New Gloucester, Me., one year from Aug. 1848; was ordained in Boston, autumn of 1849; preached in East Cambridge, Mass., one and a half years; returned to Newton Center early in 1850; was elected Teacher of Hebrew in the Theological Institution in Newton; was soon after appointed Professor of Ecclesiastical History; and, later, Professor of Christian Theology, which position he now holds. In 1861--62, he, with his wife, made a visit to Europe, spending nine months on the continent, partly in travel and partly in the German Universities.

He received the degree of D. D., from Brown University in 1856.

He has declined an invitation to the Presidency of Madison University, N. Y.; also, the charge of the Crozer Theological Seminary at Upland, Penn. He was a prominent candidate for the Presidency of Brown University to succeed Rev. Dr. Sears. As a clear-headed, learned theologian, and impressive teacher, he ranks high. He frequently preaches in vacant pulpits, or on special occasions.

His literary productions are numerous, sound, and valuable. Among them are the following volumes: 1.—An Inaugural Address, delivered June 28, 1854, 30 pp. 2. Life of John Chrysostom; translation, 1854, 239 pp. 3. *Life and Times of Rev. His name appears in our class in freshman year, but, it is believed he never recited with us. He entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where he graduated in 1843. He was Principal of Albion Seminary, Albion, Mich., from 1843 to 1850, preaching meanwhile, and reading law. In 1850, he started for California, as is supposed to enter upon law practice. He died of fever, on his passage, soon after he had crossed the isthmus, and was buried in the Pacific ocean.

He married Louisa Peabody, in Michigan, 1844.

CHILDREN.

1. Maddie, born Aug., 1845.

SAMUEL ROYALL THURSTON.

Attorney at Law; Portland, Oregon.

Born,—Monmouth, Kennebec Co., Me., April 17, 1816.

Parents,—True W. and Priscilla (Royall) Thurston.

His father moved to Peru, Oxford Co., Me., in 1819, where Samuel remained working on a farm until he was seventeen years old, when an injury changed his plans for life. He fitted for college at Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Readfield, Me.

In a letter written to classmate Adams, dated Washington, D. C., Dec. 29, 1849, he tells his own story.

"I was a member of the Freshman class of Dartmouth College in the spring and summer of 1840. I left that college at the close of the year, and entered Bowdoin College, Maine, in the fall of the same year, as a member of the Sophomore class, and graduated in the fall of 1843, six years ago last fall. I then read and practiced law in Brunswick, Me., till the fall of 1845, when I removed to Burlington, in the then territory of Iowa, where I remained until the spring of 1847, practicing my profession, and editing the Iowa Gazette, the leading democratic paper of that state.

In the spring of 1847, the climate of Iowa not agreeing with me, I bought up an ox team of five yokes of oxen, two cows and a horse, took my wife and child of three months old, in the wagon, and my goad in my hand, and drove that team two thousand four hundred miles, arriving in the valley of the Willamette river, Oregon, on the 12th day of September, 1847.

I then renewed the practice of my profession, which I continued until March, 1849, when I became a candidate for Congress, and in June following was elected. On the 4th of August following, I left my home in a boat propelled by Indians, came out over the bar of the Columbia river the second day of September, and arrived at San Francisco, on the 18th of the same month. On the first day of October, I left San Francisco, and landed at Panama, on the 23d of the same month. On the 25th, I left Panama for Chagres, where I arrived on the 29th, and took passage on board the Empire City, which left that place on the same day for New York, where I arrived on the 11th day of November, ultimo. I then paid a flying visit to my friends in Maine, and returning, arrived here on the last day of November, to labor for the interests of Oregon, which, at so early a period, has honored me with her confidence."

He read law with Hon. Robert P. Dunlap, of Brunswick, Me. He was elected the first Delegate in the United States House of Representatives from the then territory of Oregon, and took his seat in Congress, Dec., 1849. His course there was one of fidelity to his adopted state and his country, and of honor to himself. On his way homeward to Oregon, he died of bowel disease, April 9, 1851, on board steamer, and was buried in Acapulco, State of Guerrero, Mexico. His remains have been since taken to Oregon, buried in Salem, and honored with a monument by the State.

What he was in active life, he was in college — ambitious, resolute, determined. All will remember his 4th of July oration and his defiant resistance to any petty aggressions from other classes. To his foes he gave no quarter; of them he asked no favors. To his friends he was kind and true; to all he was magnanimous. He was fond of debate; made strong points and defended them vigorously. He was a sincere Christian — as humble and fervent in the prayer meeting as he was bold and earnest in public debate. He gave himself no rest. If he could not find a way he made a way; and that the straightest possible. Not by subtle intrigue but by open work he succeeded. As short as it was, his life was a well earned success. Honor to his memory!

In 1844, he married Elizabeth, daughter of John McLench, of Fayette, Kennebec Co., Me. Mrs. Thurston has married again and resides in Oregon.

He remained one term; taught until the spring of 1840; returned and finished his Freshman year with our classs. Taking leave of us, he entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., and graduated there in 1843. For the three years subsequent, he taught in Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass. Thence he went forth in 1846, as a preacher of Methodist Episcopal Church, and has labored successively in Williamsburg, Holliston, Lowell, Westfield, Roxbury, Boston, Chelsea, Worcester, Charlestown, and Lynn, Mass. He is one of the most popular and efficient ministers of his denomination.

He has frequently served on School Committees; was Chaplain of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1855; was elected one of the Overseers of Harvard College, for a term of six years, in 1855, and reelected in 1861. Has had the offer of the preceptorship of several academies in New England, and of three college presidencies in the West, but declined them. He was a Delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at the sessions of 1860 at Buffalo, and 1864 at Philadelphia. His printed compositions are numerous, consisting of School Reports, Addresses on Temperance, before Sabbath Schools, etc.; and a sermon on Timothy, in a volume entitled Young Men of the Bible. He has preached on various special occasions, and often lectured before Lyceums. In 1866, he accepted the appointment of Superintendent of Public Schools, in Charlestown, Mass.

He was Secretary of the New England Education Society in 1857–8, and has held this office by reelections, since 1861. In 1866, he was elected Trustee of Boston Theological Seminary for a term of three years, and reelected in 1869. He is, also, a Director in the American Institute of Instruction; and is everywhere a strong and judicious friend of the best kind of education.

WHO ARE NOT COLLEGE GRADUATES.

WILLIAM FULLER ANDREWS.

Born,—Ipswich, Mass., March 26, 1814.

Parents,—David and Mehitable (Pearson) Andrews.

From fifteen to twenty-one years of age, he was an apprentice in Boston. While here he became a member of the Bowdoin St. Church, and resolved to get an education and become a Christian minister. His preparatory course of study was pursued at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He left college in Nov., 1839, at the close of his first term, on account of poor health, and died in Ipswich, August 26, 1840, of pulmonary consumption.

His piety was deep, fervent, constant; his mind not brilliant, but solid, resolute, well disciplined. He was systematic and patient. His social nature was amiable, his whole character high toned, well matured, inflexible in the right. Soonest ready, soonest to go. "Either way," were his words when asked if he would rather stay or go. "Character can not be learned in a grave-yard," said he; so, at his request, his plain tomb-stone reads—William Fuller Andrews, died August 26, 1840, aged 26 years.

THOMAS PERLEY BARROWS.

Born,—Fryeburg, Me., May 14, 1823.

Parents,—Dr. Reuel and Nancy (Perley) Barrows.

He was taken ill with typhoid fever in October of his Sophomore fall, and died, after about two weeks sickness, in Hanover, N. H., Nov. 5, 1840. A delegation of his classmates attended his body to Fryeburg, where it was buried. With an active mind, obliging disposition, good scholarship, his promise was bright. He was the only classmate who died in college.

GEORGE BRADLEY.

Born,— Concord, N. H., March 23, 1824.

Parents,— Hon. Richard and Elizabeth (Ayer) Bradley. His sister, Susan A., is the wife of the Hon. Harvey Jewell, D. C., 1844, of Boston.

His preparatory studies were pursued in Fryeburg Academy, Me.

He left at the end of the Freshman year, and has since pursued an erratic course. His chief business has been in connection with rail roads as contractor, road master, etc., in New York and in the south-western states. He was last reported in the rebel service near Port Hudson and Memphis, Tenn.

In 1848, he married Lucinda, daughter of Joel Fife of Pembroke, N. H. They had two children: one died; the other, a daughter, is with her mother, who was divorced from Bradley and married again.

CYRUS COLLINS.

Born,— Corinth, Vt., April 14, 1815.

Parents,— Levi and Betsey (Towle) Collins.

His preparatory course was pursued at Bradford Academy, Vt., and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He entered the class of 1842; was with us a part of our course.

He taught in Indiana, 1843–4; in Kentucky, 1844–6. In 1847, he was Principal of a Female Seminary in Oxford, Miss. Two years after he went to Peoria, Ill., where he taught an academy for about three years. He left Peoria for California, in 1851. His pursuits in California were various, until 1856, when he built and opened Stockton Female Seminary. He was, in 1862, Superintendent of Public Instruction for San Joaquin county.

In 1863, having studied medicine while teaching in Kentucky, he commenced the practice of the healing art in Virginia City, California.

He married Susan C. Walling, of Louisville, Ky., in 1846.

CHILDREN.

1. Albertina, born March 17, 1850; died Sept., 1859.
2. Grace Gertrude, " April 6, 1861.

JOSEPH WOOD DANA.

Born,— Lebanon, N. H.

Parents,— Capt. Jedediah and Martha (Wood) Dana. Dr. Samuel Wood Dana, D. C., 1854, is a brother.

He left college in October, 1842, on account of weak eyes. Soon after, he commenced teaching in Lawrenceburg, Tenn. In 1847, he was teaching very successfully, near Canton, Madison Co., Miss. He afterward took up a lot of land in Ottowa, La Salle Co., Ill., and commenced farming on a large scale. He was ambitious and enterprising; was active in founding and sustaining a church and other religious institutions in his town; was Superintendant of the Sabbath school. After a residence of five or six years he died of cholera, July, 1854, at Waltham P. O., in Ottawa. His death was regarded as a great loss to the community in which he lived. He left a widow, but no children.

DANIEL BENEDICT DUTTON.

Born,— Stowe, Vt., August 30, 1817.

Parents,— Daniel Benedict and Loraine (Smith) Dutton. They moved to Norwich, Vt.

His studies for college were made at Meriden, N. H. At the beginning of our Junior year he left to earn funds. He studied medicine with Dr. Peck of Lyons, N. Y.; attended one course of lectures at Dartmouth Medical College, in 1843; continued his studies with Dr. Card of Painesville, O., and Drs. Paddock & Butterfield, at Willoughby Medical College, Ohio, where he received his M. D. in 1845. He began to practise in Kirtland, O.; went from thence to Greensburgh, Ind. He early abandoned the profession of medicine for that of music; has turned author by making a collection of music, arranged according to figure system of notation, mostly original. Has been engaged in introducing his system to the public. It was gaining favor rapidly. The manuscripts which he had prepared for an enlarged edition were unfortunately destroyed by fire in 1851. He then went to Brookville, Ind., and engaged in daguerreotyping and teaching music until the year 1859, when he resumed the profession of medicine. The failure of his health soon obliged him to relinquish this; and he taught school for three years in Brookville Academy. In the autumn of 1863, he volunteered as a private in the 123d Regiment, Indiana Infantry, and was appointed Assistant Surgeon. He was with Gen.

Sherman's army during its triumphal march through the South. His home is still at Brookville, Franklin Co., Ind. Does not complain of his success.

He married, Oct. 30, 1847, M. Cornelia, daughter of Dr. John M. Howland, formerly Professor in Baltimore Medical College, in Palmyra, Rush Co., Ind.

CHILDREN.

1. Albert Livingston,	born Dec. 29,	1848.
2. Edmund Burke,	"	1851.
3. Mary Hewitt,	"	1854.
4. John Howland,	"	1864.

STEPHEN GALE.

Born,— Salisbury, N. H.

While in college he sustained a good reputation as a man and a scholar. He was noted for his vigorous and successful resistance to sophomoric aggressions upon the class at the Chapel entrance.

He left us at close of the spring term, 1840. In 1850, he was a prosperous farmer in Fairfax, Vt., and was married. He is said to be settled in some western state.

LEWIS DAVIS HARLOW.

Physician; Philadelphia, Penn.

Born,— Windsor, Vt., June 16, 1818.

Parents,— Lewis and Elizabeth (Davis) Harlow.

He was fitted for college at the Academies in Chester, Ludlow, Vt., and Lancaster, N. H.

He became a member of our class in the spring of 1840, and left near the close of the Sophomore year, in 1841, to engage in teaching a Select School in Medford, N. J. Here he remained, with the exception of a lecture term at Dartmouth Medical College in the autumn of 1843, until the spring of 1844, pursuing the study of Medicine all the while with Dr. H. P. Ely. The next year, 1844–5, he spent in studying medicine with Dr. B. H. Stratton, Mount Holly, N. J., and attending a course of Medical Lectures in Castleton, Vt. In the spring of 1845, after attending his third course of lectures, he took his degree of M.D., at the University of Pennsylvania.

He commenced the practice of his profession at Taylorsville, Bucks Co., Penn., in September, 1845. After a very successful practice here of ten years, he was elected in July, 1855, Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children in the Philadelphia College of Medicine, and removed to Philadelphia the next October. In 1859, he was appointed Professor of the same subjects in the Medical Department of Pennsylvania College. We have good reason for saying that his opinions and practice in medical matters are held in high estimation. During the rebel war, he held important positions as Surgeon in the United States service in charge of Hospitals at Philadelphia, Nashville, Tenn., and on Lookout Mountain, near Chattanooga; and, for faithful and meritorious services, was brevetted Lieutenant Colonel of Volunteers. Since the close of the war, he has returned to Philadelphia and resumed his practice as physician. He resides at 1520 Arch St.

He was honored with the degree of M. A. at Dartmouth in 1857.

He married, May 6, 1846, Anna Reading Rogers, of Mount Holly, N. J.

MOSES KELLY.

Clerk; Lawyer; Cashier; Washington, D. C.

Born,— Warner, N. H., Dec. 26, 1818.

Parents,— Hon. Abner Bailey and Jerusha (Fowler) Kelly. Rev. Wm. Kelly, for 29 years pastor of the Congregational Church in Warner, was his grandfather.

He was prepared for college mostly in the Literary Institute, Concord, N. H., where his parents resided for several years.

He left the class in the spring of 1841, chiefly in consequence of weak eyes. After this he taught in Maryland about a year.

He, then, became a clerk under the National Government, Washington, D. C.. He was successively, Clerk and Pay Agent in the General Land Office from 1842 to July 1, 1853; Disbursing Clerk of the Department of the Interior from July 1, 1853 to October, 1856; Chief Clerk of that Department from Oct., 1856 to Jan. 1861; and from March 4, 1861 to October, 1861.

After the resignation of Hon. Jacob Thompson, from January to March 4, 1861, he was Acting Secretary of the Interior. By the appointment of President Lincoln, he was Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, Oct., 1861 to July, 1862. Subsequently to this, he spent most of the time until the spring of 1864, in his native state with his family. In June, 1863, at Manchester, he was admitted to the New Hampshire Bar as an Attorney at Law.

April 18, 1864, he was chosen Cashier of the Bank of the Metropolis and returned to Washington, D. C., where he now resides in this position, and in caring for his large real estate interests in that city.

He is an elder in the Presbyterian Church of which Rev. John C. Smith, D.D., is pastor.

He is faithful to his trusts; prudent in counsel; successful in his affairs; a truly worthy man. His deep and constant interest in the preservation of the class history, and his material aid in helping it on, commend him to our warmest fraternal regard.

He married, June 5, 1844, Mary, daughter of David Walker, Esq., of Washington, D. C.

CHILDREN.

GEORGE FREDERIC KENT.

Born,— Concord, N. H., Feb. 4, 1824.

Parents,— Hon. George, D. C., 1814, and Lucy Anne (Farrand) Kent. Hon. Wm. A. Kent, of Concord, N. H., now in the Boston Custom House, and Hon. Edward Kent, Ex-governor of Me., are his uncles. Alexander Hamilton Kent, D. C. 1841, is a brother.

He left college at the beginning of Junior year, and was subsequently a clerk in the book store of J. F. Brown, Concord, and of W. A. Ruggles, Hanover, N. H., and in similar stores in New York and Boston.

He spent the summer and autumn of 1848 in traveling over New England and Canada. In February, 1849, he sailed from Boston for California. He reached San Francisco, via Cape Horn, in Sept., 1849, and proceeded to the mines. He died in California early in the spring of 1858.

He was a man of finely cultivated literary taste, much reading, delicate sensibility, retiring habits and excellent character every way. He wrote much in prose and poetry for literary journals, and some of very decided merit for the Knickerbocker. His life was rich in incident, and he told its story in happy composition. His modesty prevented him from making his real worth generally known.

LEMUEL BICKFORD MASON.

Born,— Moultonborough, N. H., Jan. 2, 1818.

Parents,— Ephraim C. and Betsey (Weeks) Mason.

He was with us only the Freshman fall term. Went to Paterson, N. J., as teacher. Became a Universalist preacher soon after, and preached in New York city and Albany, N. Y. Removed to Lebanon, N. H.; assisted Professor John P. Marshall, now of Tufts College, in the Lebanon Liberal Institute, and preached as pastor of the Universalist Society, four years. After preaching a short time in Lowell, Mass., he was installed pastor of the Summer street Universalist Church in Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 30, 1849, and remained four years. Thence he went to Chicago and preached several years, where he published The New Covenant, in addition to pastoral duties. His next charge was in Madison, Wis. He was Chaplain of a Wisconsin Regiment during the war until 1863, when declining health compelled him to retire. He died of an internal cancerous affection early in the summer of 1864, in the serenity of Christian faith, and leaving the record of a useful life.

He married, in Paterson, N. J., Lucy Hall Cole, Dec. 13, 1842. She with five sons, Edwin C., Freddie O., Frank K., Herbert and Henry, now resides in Madison, Wis.

JACOB LEONARD PERKINS.

Born,— Middleborough, Mass.

Parents,— Jacob and Kezia (Reed) Perkins.

Fitted for college in Pierce Academy, Middleboro. He was with the class only one term. After leaving, he studied law and was admitted to the Bar, but never practiced. In 1849 or '50, he went to California and engaged in mining. He was Treasurer of El Dorado County, residing at Placerville, in 1865.

JASON BROWN PIERCE.

Born,— Woodstock, Vt., Dec., 13, 1821.

Parents,— Hon. David and Ruth (Downer) Pierce.

He fitted for college in K. U. Academy, Meriden, N. H. Was connected with the class the first two years. After taking a whaling cruise, he returned to Woodstock; remained some years; went to California, and was engaged in business at Oakland in 1860. Was Alderman of this place several years. In 1865, he was residing in San Francisco, having connection with the Mechanic's Institute. Said to be a worthy man; business success, fair.

He married, April 28, 1852, Harriet E., daughter of Wm. H. Lemmex, Esq., Bridgewater, Vt.

CHILDREN.

1. Mary Lemmex, b. March 9, 1854.
2. William Lemmex, b. June 18, 1860.

STEPHEN HARTSHORN PRATT.

Born,— Amherst, N. H., Aug. 15, 1818.

Parents,— Loca and Lucy (Hartshorn) Pratt. Edward H. Pratt, D. C., 1841, is a brother.

His academic course was pursued in New Ipswich and Meriden, N. H., and Pepperell, Mass.

He left in the first term of Junior year, on the death of his mother. After teaching six months during the autumn and winter of 1842 '43, in North Amherst, Mass., he went to Baltimore, Md., where he took charge of a private school called the Ladies Literary Institute, from June, 1843 to July, 1848. He then studied medicine with Dr. A. C. Robinson, of Baltimore, and, in March, 1849, graduated M.D., at the University of Maryland. He immediately opened an office in Baltimore, and continued in practice there until his death, Jan. 19, 1855. He died of typhoid fever and was buried in Baltimore.

He married Priscilla Sophronia Johnson, of Baltimore, Dec. 1, 1853.

Mrs. P. still resides in Baltimore. In college, Pratt was a man of upright character. He is said to have been popular and successful in his profession.

DAVID SIDNEY RICHARDSON.

Born,— Cornish, N. H., Sept. 1, 1821.

Parents,— David and Sarah Gooding (Ford) Richardson.

Rev. Daniel Ford Richardson, D. C., 1831, and Rev. Horace Richardson, D. C. 1841, are his brothers.

His fitting to enter college was made at New Hampton, N. H.; admitted in 1838; entered with our class. He gave up his course on account of ill health. He has the honorary degree of M. A. In 1840, he went to North Carolina and engaged in teaching in Belford, Nashe Co. His work has chiefly been that of an educator in North Carolina. He has founded five academies in that state. For eight years he was Principal of "The Wilson Schools," in Wilson, Wilson Co., N. C., which consist of a Seminary for Young Ladies and a Gymnasium for Boys. He was editor and proprietor of The Wilson Ledger and associate editor of the North Carolina Journal of Education, which he originated. His success had satisfied his ambition and his purse; but the ruin of the rebellion broke up his school and greatly impaired his estate. As he was a true Union man, he found it prudent for him to come north during the fiercest storm of war. He is now teaching at a place on Mobile Bay, twelve miles from the city of Mobile, Ala., which is his P. O., address.

He married, in North Carolina, in 1850, Mary Cleora, daughter of Capt. Josiah Stone, of Cornish, N. H.

CHILDREN.

Six in number; all deceased save one.

HENRY FREDERIC SANBORN.

Born,—Epsom, N. H., Feb., 26, 1819.

Parents,—Dea. Frederick and Lucy (Sargent) Sanborn. Gen. John B. Sanborn, of St. Paul, Minn., is a brother.

The close confinement of a student life proving injurious to his health, he left at the end of Sophomore year and became a farmer in his native town, where he now resides, a prosperous and influential citizen. He has often served on the School Committee of Epsom. He represented the town in the New Hampshire Legislature in 1855 and 1856, and the 4th Senatorial District in the New Hampshire Senate in 1866 and 1867.

He married Eunice Davis, of Princeton, Mass., June 1, 1843.

CHILDREN.

1. Walter Henry, born Oct. 19, 1845.

HIRAM SMITH.

Born,—Leicester, Vt., Oct. 17, 1817.

Parents,—Stephen and Polly Smith.

He fitted for college at Shoreham Academy, Vt. His health was poor and he left in the autumn of 1841; taught school a few months; read law with Barzillai Davenport, Esq., of Brandon, Vt.; was admitted to the Rutland Co. Bar, and practiced one year in Brandon.

Continued feeble health forced him to give up his business. He died of consumption, in his native town, Aug. 24, 1845.

About 12 others have issued Sermons and Speeches; and nearly 40 are authors of School Reports, Rail Road Reports, Law Reports, Legislative Reports, Medical Monographs, etc., etc.

XI. INVENTIONS.

The one claimed by Brewer, in the development and utilizing of Petroleum, is resulting in one of the greatest economical blessings in the world. The Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company, incorporated in 1854, was the first Oil Company ever organized. F. B. Brewer, G. H. Bissell, A. H. Crosby, and J. G. Evelith were the corporators. Lufkin has, also, made very useful improvements in Carbonate of Lead, Tanning Leather, etc.

MUSIC.

DEGREES CONFERRED.

MUSIC.

PRAYER.

The exercises were held, as usual, in the old College church. Col. A. A. Brewster, father of classmate Brewster, was Marshal of the day. Ross was Class Marshal. Among the distinguished guests present, was Daniel Webster, for the first time since his graduation in 1801.

Our music was furnished by the "Black Band" of Philadelphia, which gave a concert in the evening for our benefit.

COLLEGE REMINISCENCES.

Our Preparatory Courses were pursued at Meriden, by 16; Gilmanton, 8; Exeter, 5; Newbury, Vt., 5; Andover, Mass., 4; Lancaster, 4; Hanover, 3; Pepperell, Mass., 3; Fryeburg, Me., 3; New Hampton, 3; others only one and two each. Admissions were made from the class of 1838, 4; in Freshman fall, 81; Freshman spring, 9; Sophomore fall, 6; Sophomore spring, 1; Junior fall, 2. Total, 104.

Our Catalogue contained in Freshman fall, 33 names; Sophomore, 90; Junior, 85; Senior, 77.

Our Freshman year commenced Aug. 22, 1839; our Senior, ended July 27, 1843.

Of our 104 members, 75 are graduates at Dartmouth in 1843; 1 in 1844; 4 at Union in 1843; 3 at Bowdoin; 2 at Wesleyan University; 1 at Harvard; 1 at Waterville. Total, 87.

Of the 17 nongraduates, 2 died in college; 6 left by reason of poor health; 4, pecuniary embarrassment; 5, for other reasons.

Fifty-two, or one-half the members of the class, had made public profession of religion before entering college. About 12 have done so since. The general moral tone of the class was very high. Very few were habitual drinkers; not more than four or five could be called intemperate. Less than one-fourth of the class smoked or used tobacco in any form.

Political excitement ran high in a portion of our freshman and sophomore years. It was during the Harrison campaign. White river, Orford, where Webster spoke and all the college went to hear him, Concord and other conventions will be remembered. The state law had recently declared that students as such could not gain a residence as voters, and all went home to vote. About 12 of the 104 classmates were Democrats, and the remaining about 92 were Whigs.

Secret Literary Societies have received much opposition at different periods, from some of the best hearts and heads, as making divisions among those who ought to have a common interest, and as, in consequence, calling out much bitter feeling, unkind speech, and ungenerous action, among undergraduates. It is certain that in after life, the distinctions in college have little weight among the wise and good. They are ephemeral. The world never inquires after them. All it wants to know of any one is, what kind of a man he now is for the place his country and his God want filled.

Our class followed the class of 1841, '42, and was followed by two or three classes after us, in organized opposition to these societies as then conducted. We are happy to learn that the present system of elections, especially to the Phi Beta Kappa, is less exciting and hence, less objectionable. Fifty-six classmates, including some of our best minds, months before the election, pledged themselves not to join the Phi Beta Kappa, if elected as elections then were made, by undergraduates of the previous class.

The members of the Phi Beta Kappa Society are, Blood, J. B. Clarke, Clay, Cleaves, Colony, Dickinson, Farley, Fletcher, Furber, Harlow, Haskell, Lawrence, H. C. Lord, W. H. Lord, Miller, Newton, Parker, Putnam, Sherman, Stevens, Twombly, Varney, Wakefield, Wheeler, Williams, A. Wood = 26.

The members of Three Kappas are, Bingham, F. B. Clark, J. B. Clarke, Farley, Freelon, Gooch, Hemmenway, H. C. Lord, Marston, Stevens, Wakefield, W. H. Wood = 12.

The members of Psi Upsilon are, Clay, Colony, Dickinson, Fiske, Fletcher, Furber, Lawrence, W. H. Lord, Newton, Parker, Putnam, Sherman, Varney, Wheeler, A. Wood = 15.

The Gamma Sigma Society grew out of the feeling against the mode of electing to the Phi Beta Kappa, and was vigorously sustained some years. It had 47 members in our class. Its officers were,— President, Prof. Alpheus Crosby; Vice Presidents, Swallow, Tenney, Fiske; Secretaries, Burbank, Ross.

The members of the Theological Society are, Adams, Atkinson, Barnard, Blanchard, Blood, F. B. Clark, Dutton, Fletcher, S. H. Freeman, French, Hodgman, Hovey, Jewett, Lawrence, A. C. Lord, S. A. Lord, Murdough, Newton, Parker, Patten, Putnam, Ray, Sanborn, Spofford, Stuart, Swallow, Varney, Winslow, Wood.

The Members of the Society of Inquiry are, Atkinson, Barnard, Blood, Hodgman, Hovey, Jewett, A. C. Lord, Murdough, Newhall, Newton, Patten, Ray, Stuart, Swallow, Winslow, Wood.

The Handel Society was composed of the best musicians of the classes. They conducted the music in the Chapel and in Church. Presidents, Rowell, Furber; Secretary, Putnam; Other members, Caverly, Cooke, Dickinson, Dutton, Mason, Sherman, Spofford, Wheeler, A. Wood. Total, 12.

The Dartmouth Phalanx was a voluntary military organization of students from all the classes, which had an existence for several years. Its drills were frequent, and it attained an excellent reputation for its admirable discipline and fine appearance. Guppey was our Captain.

The members of the two Literary Societies,— Social Friends and United Fraternity,— were assigned by a joint Committee from each Society, in alphabetic order, as they entered college. Nearly every one of our class joined the society to which he was assigned, and each contributed, at graduation, from $5 to $20 as a donation to the libraries. A reform was commenced by our class in the method of collecting assessments and preserving the libraries from pilfering and abuse, which has since, we learn, been perfected. The officers from our class were, in SOCIAL FRIENDS — Bingham, Wakefield, J. B. Clarke, Presidents; Stevens, Marston, Brewer, Vice Presidents; Cilley, Colony, Brigham, Secretaries; Cleaves, Murdough, Librarians; Caverly, Collector; Tenney, Treasurer; Tenney, Auditor; Wheeler, Tenney, Inspectors. UNITED FRATERNITY — Hemmenway, Sargeant, Gooch, Freelon, Presidents; Guppey, Gooch, S. A. Lord, Vice Presidents; Furber, Copp, Taft, Secretaries; Adams, Librarian; Pinkham, Collector; Newton, Treasurer; Clay, Auditor.

The Dartmouth was started by the class of 1840. It was managed by a board of Editors elected by the senior class from its own members. It was continued by the classes of 1841, '42, '43, and '44, through 5 volumes, for $1.00 per vol. It has been recently revived, we are happy to notice, and is now Vol. III, of New Series, as it ought to be called. The present undergraduates are not true to history in saying "The first number of this magazine was issued in January, 1867." It should be, in September, 1839.

Our editors were, Sargeant, Chairman; Tenney, Treasurer; Adams, Director of Printing; Freelon, Clerk; Farley, Wakefield.

Patten was our printer. The work cost us about $600. About $100 stand, to-day, charged on our old book against delinquent subscribers. We had to draw pockets to pay the deficiency. The copies were sent or delivered to subscribers from the Treasurer's room, No. 15, Thornton Hall.

ROOMS — In College Buildings were occupied chiefly by the senior class, and drawn by lot at the close of junior year for the coming senior year. No. 1 had his choice of a room, and so on till all were taken. Atkinson and Tenney, Blood and Jewett, Wakefield and Wheeler, were the only cases of room mates continuing together through the whole course.

The following is a copy of the catalogue of our class as printed in the issue of our senior year, in autumn of 1842. It will show names, residence, and rooms as they then were. L. H. signifies Lang Hall, R. H. Reed Hall, T. H. Thornton Hall, W. H. Wentworth Hall.

☞ Fletcher, Freelon, E. Freeman, Kelly, Leavitt, H. C. Lord, Parker, Parnell, Taft and Williams, have not been recently heard from. It is presumed they did not receive the circulars and proof slips sent them.

☞ An interleaved copy of the CLASS MEMORIAL will be kept by the Secretary, in which will be written corrections, additions, and new facts, as they come to his knowledge. About 100 copies of the Memorial are kept unbound, to which it is proposed to add a few printed pages each Septenary, and distribute to such classmates as desire them and will pay the expense.

☞ The Secretary deeply regrets the impossibility, which distance and other causes have made, to a free consultation with the capable committee, Hodgman, Varney and Adams, appointed by the class to assist him. They have given good hints which have been heeded, and with many kind expressions of confidence, freely trusted the plan and details of the work to him.

We have consulted with any classmates as we have had opportunity, and are especially indebted to classmate A. Wood, Principal of Albany Academy, for valuable hints while the work has been going through the press.
